School reform urged

Carmel public schools have gone soft on the 3Rs, the "Pine Cone" says in an editorial, and has instead offered youngsters frills of little use to them. A shake-up in curriculum is needed, the newspaper says. Page 2.

County needs 'Petaluma Plan'

A "Petaluma Plan" is needed in Monterey County, otherwise the area faces serious consequences from its permissive attitude toward growth, says Paul F. Patchick, newly appointed to the County Planning Commission. Also sharing the page of opinion is an open letter to Ansel Adams by a Big Sur resident who asks the famed photographer and others to drop the idea of making Big Sur a national park. Page 3.

New zoning category

The Carmel City Council passed a new residential zoning designation and now it will conduct a hearing Tuesday to further debate the R-4 zone's possible uses. Page 5.

145 seek job

More than 145 persons have applied to become the new superintendent of Carmel Unified School District. Trustees hope to hire one of them by April. Page 5.

The phantom subdivision

The strange case of a 13.5-acre parcel in Pebble Beach goes before the Monterey County Board of Supervisors later this month. The question: Was the land subdivided in 1928? Page 6.

Trash rate hike

It seems likely that monthly garbage bills will climb 50 cents by April. Before that happens, however, the Carmel City Council wants to extract a freebie from the franchised refuse collection firm. Page 7.

Concert pleasures

Some parts of the San Francisco Chamber concert Sunday at Sunset Center were pleasing, reports music critic Scott MacClelland. Even more delightful was the Saturday concert given by singer William Pell. Page 10.

Tough luck, France

No need to rely on France for fine wine this season, Robert Lawrence Balzer, the wine critic, says. Good California wines are plentiful, he reports. Page 12.

'Valentine Lady' of Carmel

Louise Shaw, a widow from Carmel, has become known as the "Valentine Lady" because she owns what must be one of the largest collections of Valentine greetings in the world. She has more than 3,000, as a matter of fact. Page 17.

Carmel artist evicted

The Carmel Community and Cultural Commission got tough late in January and evicted an artist who rented low-cost space at Sunset Center. Page 20.

Padres on top

Still holding the league lead, the basketball-playing Carmel High School Padres nonetheless got a scare last week. Meanwhile, synchronized swimmers from Carmel did well in a weekend meet in San Francisco. Page 21.

Streets downtown are being torn up as Pacific Gas and Electric Co. begins phase three of a utility wire undergrounding project. Page 32.

Plume of dust

A new storm has hit and renewed the gnawing started by the last one along the Carmel Beach seawall. High tides, coupled with high, powerful waves, have hit hardest along the seawall at the foot of 13th Street. Their jarring action caused dirt slides Monday at the point. Watch the area circled above. After a wave hits and rolls out, an amount of dirt falls and sends up a plume of dust (left). Despite the minor slides, the Carmel Public Works Department said Scenic Drive is not in danger. (George T. C. Smith photos)

Vows to fight

Dear Editor:

Fly to the storm cellar, Mabel! The Marriott monster is breathing fire!

The wily proponents of the proposed hotel complex in the mouth of the Carmel Valley won a first-round victory at the supervisors' meeting, Jan. 31.

Possibly duped by a clever Marriott ploy, the supervisors reached an extraordinary decision (against the better judgments of Sam Farr and Dusan Petrovic).

They gave Marriott the right to speak unopposed at the forthcoming meeting Feb. 14 to determine the validity of Marriott's plan (relative to its environmental impact report).

Unopposed?

Yes, Mabel. Unopposed. Opponents of the tourist intensive development will be silenced at the climax meeting. Only Marriott will be allowed to speak and without fear of rebuttal.

What, Mabel? You say it doesn't smell democratic? It's perhaps not legal? It's certainly unfair to concerned citizens like yourself? Ah, but that's the way it is when artful lawyers artfully manipulate.

But don't cower in the cellar, Mabel. Gird your loins and prepare to fight. The battle's only just begun.

Failing schools

Dear Editor:

Every taxpayer and parent in the Carmel Unified School District should read the excellent article by Judith Eisner telling about the splendid educational system at All Saints' Episcopal Day School (Pine Cone, Jan. 26).

Copies of this article should be sent to all school board members and to friends throughout our country. Many Americans are greatly concerned about the deplorable condition of the American educational system. There was a most informative article in a famous national magazine describing classroom conditions in American schools — the violence, the disrespect, the hostility and how students feel they have license to behave any way they wanted to knowing that nothing will happen to them.

Many young people today are influenced greatly by peer pressure and they often reject their parents' counsel in order to be one of the group. The result is that our educational system is creating drug addicts, alcoholics and sex perverts. The development of strong, healthy, bright, interesting youth is neglected because school administrators are not able to solve the educational problem. However, the administrators of All Saints' Day School appear to have a curriculum which should be adopted by all public schools.

The only way to build a nation or a country is from the home to government, not from government to the home. The home is built through the church. Schools should develop character in children who, in turn, will build the home and good government.

All parents should want their children to be four-fold developed to assure a strong America. I'm sure parents do not want to see their children end up in mental institutions and human garbage dumps.

Reliable source

Dear Editor:

I have heard from a reliable source that Rippling River is being considered as a research center for aiding persons with cancer, cerebral palsy, stroke victims and many others. This would be monitored by a two-time Nobel Prize winner. Dr. Salk is starting a similar center to study multiple sclerosis.

I have also heard that another HEW project could take Rippling River over for low-cost housing.

Which do you think would really do the most for Carmel Valley?

Congressman Leon Panetta should be able to help get the much-needed research center underway. If he could, he would get my vote this year. Write and let him know before it's too late.

Sandi Lane

(Editor's note: The Rippling River Center is owned by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development as a result of a loan foreclosure in 1976. The department intends to sell the facility, originally a residential complex for the handicapped, according to Dirk Murphy, special assistant to the director of the San Francisco area for HUD. "We are not considering any one alternative at this time," he said, but Murphy indicated the department wants to sell the property at some future date.)

Seal story

Dear Editor:

My thanks for printing Jim Barrett's careful article on the seal stranded on our beach (Pine Cone, Feb. 2).

Many people felt a deep concern for it and wondered what agency of all our involved arms of government should solve the problem if individuals could not.

Please give us a progress report in a few weeks. We have a particular interest as our granddaughter, Lucinda Smith, is on the team of UC Santa Cruz students studying the elephant seal in detail at close range on Ano Nuevo Island.

Art addendum

Dear Editor:

May I be allowed an addendum to my review of the current exhibition at the Laky Gallery (Pine Cone, Feb. 2)? A telephone interruption caused me to overlook the last passage on page two of my three-page review. This caused the omission of my notes on the entries of Joan Savo.

I had written:

"Joan Savo, whose paintings I have viewed with interest in the past at the Carmel Art Association, is represented with two oils — Figure in Yellow and Encounter. The latter is more typical of her style. It shows an elusive elongated figure of an adolescent standing expressionless against a vast and lonely background in subdued tonalities. It is a good example of her fairly consistent compositional arrangements and art statements."

Write FCC

Dear Editor:

I want to tell all Carmelites who have enjoyed the KWAV-FM classical music hours from 7 p.m. to midnight weekdays that a new owner plans to replace this much-loved program with one of folk music.

You do not need me to tell you how much folk music is available on radio, nor how little classical music there is in this area. Do write to the Federal Communications Bureau, Custom House, San Francisco 94111, and urge them to request that this program be retained as part of the community service requirement that they meet in order to hold the station license.

It does no good to protest after the fact. So do it at once, and help to keep the few good things that are available to us on our airways. Send a copy to KWAV to inform them of your concern. The new owner may not realize how important this program is — do tell him. His name is James E. Brown of Arizona and the replacing program will be push-button religious folk music.

School shake-up is long overdue

By AL EISNER

AN ELEVEN-YEAR-OLD boy whose reading test scores show he is far ahead of his grade level cannot answer the question: "Who was Christopher Columbus?"

Another youngster of the same age, after successfully completing a reading assignment on the Transatlantic cable, cannot figure out under which ocean the cable lies.

Opinion

A seventh grader who does not get any homework at the junior high school he attends works with his parents for at least one hour a day to make up for the work he does not get at school.

Where are these things happening? At inner city schools with a high percentage of minority students? At impoverished rural schools with a low tax base?

No. They are happening right here in the affluent Carmel Unified School District and to the dismay of educators and parents alike. All this despite the fact that the district spends about $1,500 per child, which is far above the state average. All this despite the fact that our schools have an extremely low percentage of minority students. And despite the fact that the parents of these same students achieved a high level of education and seek the same for their children.

A report to the school board trustees last month on the results of statewide tests for sixth and 12th graders showed that our children were performing in certain categories at the lowest levels statewide for school districts that have similar educational and economic indicators. (Sixth graders placed in the 67th percentile statewide in spelling skills; high school seniors scored in the 87th percentile statewide on written expression tests.)

School administrators point proudly to the high rankings in many areas, including the statistic that 80 per cent of the graduates of Carmel High School go on to college.

But how can we explain another statistic? After spending a year in kindergarten in Carmel schools, children are ranked in the 75th percentile statewide in spelling. When one considers that there are 300,000 to 500,000 Spanish-speaking children attending California public schools, it is a dismal record. Our kids ought to be in the 95th percentile.

WHAT HAS gone wrong? Why aren't our youngsters doing better?

The problem is not unique to Carmel. Magazine cover stories trumpet: "Why Can't Johnny Read?" Educators and parent groups all over the nation are groping for answers.

The national dilemma undoubtedly began when the Soviet Union launched the first unmanned space flight 20 years ago. When Sputnik blazed across the skies, the educational establishment quivered and with huge transfusions of federal money, shifted to a technologically based system.

Vocal minority groups demanded programs for the disadvantaged. Liberal arts programs suffered. Educators sought programs that could be absorbed by the lowest common denominator.

Reading and writing were deemphasized. Science faculties grew.

Then, the most powerful assault came. Schools were asked to deal with the "whole person," instead of drilling in the 3Rs.

Writing in a November issue of Newsweek, Suzanne Britt Jordan, an English teacher in North Carolina, said: "We suddenly, naively believed that we could 1) make everybody happy, 2) make everybody well adjusted, 3) forgive everybody who failed, and 4) expect gratitude to boot. When students were surly, uncooperative, whiny and apathetic, educators decided they themselves didn't know how to teach — we look for every reason for the declining test scores of our children except for stupidity and laziness.

"The function of schools, their first and primary obligation, is not to probe tender psyches, to feed and clothe the homeless, nor to be the papa and mama a kid never had. The job is to teach."

And teaching is hard work. It's a lot more fun to take a field trip, putter with pottery, study native Indian folklore or paint the set for the school play than it is to drill in spelling. Teachers and kids alike prefer to discuss "lifestyles" than to translate a difficult passage from another language.

This kind of activity, if extended to its extreme, will turn our children's heads to mush.

This county needs a 'Petaluma plan'

School crowding, farm land buy-ups inevitable otherwise, says planner

By PAUL F. PATCHICK
County Planning Commissioner

I BELIEVE THAT a county has the right to restrict growth and that the people who live in an area have a right to challenge the relentless push for premature construction.

The Supreme Court in 1976 upheld the city of Petaluma's right to restrict growth in the face of a legal challenge by the construction industry.

Soon Monterey County will feel the impact of unchecked housing development on its crowded schools, just as it is seeing its prime agricultural land encroached upon by developments. In Petaluma, water and sewage treatment services were similarly hard pressed to accommodate its average annual population growth of 18 per cent in the early 1970s.

In 1972, the Petaluma City Council adopted a growth management plan. The year previously, its citizens indicated in a poll that they wanted to keep the city's population under 40,000. It was 30,000 in 1977. I would favor a similar growth management policy.

Petaluma's City Council in 1973 proposed to limit housing development to only 500 units a year through 1977. Eighty-two per cent of the voters on an advisory ballot measure approved the council action. I would push for a similar regulated growth policy.

The key to controlled growth is realistic planning. A five-year plan is most reasonable. I would argue for a balance in housing construction within all sectors of the county to provide a mix between single-family and multi-family dwellings. I would urge the elimination of speculative building. I see no obligation for a community, such as Carmel Valley, to attract people through pure speculative home building.

I FAVOR the establishment of guidelines and criteria in advance, so that planners and developers will know exactly what is expected of them. For example, all developments might have to score a minimum of 100 points out of a possible 130 to even qualify for consideration. A development would be rated on the basis of site design and other factors. In brief, the county planners will have decided in advance just what type of development will be permitted.

Again, returning to the Petaluma approach, each development proposal is assigned points on a predetermined scale for:

- The ability and capacity of the existing systems to provide water, sanitary and drainage facilities for the proposed project without system modifications beyond those which the developer would provide.
- The ability and capacity of the existing fire, school and major street linkages to provide services without modification that the developer might provide.
- Design quality, including the quality of architecture, site selection and design, lot orientation, landscaping, traffic safety, private safety, open space and publicly accessible green belts.
- Provision for foot and bicycle paths.
- An orderly and contiguous extension of existing development.
- The provision of needed public facilities and the provision of units to meet the city's policy goal of 8 to 12 per cent low- and moderate-income dwelling units annually.

'Unfortunately, man sees nature as a constant foe' time-consuming process of negotiation between planner, architect, developer and the county through its board of supervisors.

I personally favor developments which follow the slope of the terrain to minimize grading. I would disallow developments with extensive cuts and fills, especially where the cuts were high. I would favor developments minimizing energy usage. I would watch carefully developments in questionable soil and bedrock areas or in areas involving geologic hazards, such as landslides, mudslides or seismicity.

I believe that every living thing is part of an "ecosystem," and since all ecosystems are related to each other, every living thing is somehow related to every other living thing.

Human beings are not the center of the global ecosystem. Every activity of man is done within the context of ecology. The demands that nature makes on the behavior of man and other species are nonnegotiable. Living in accord with these ecological principles begins to ensure a life of quality and meaning. Ignoring these principles is surely courting disaster.

NOTHING IS FREE. Every change in an ecosystem affects another part of the ecosystem. Since the earth's resources are finite, any progress, development, profit or expanding economy in one area robs the resources of another area. An example is the exportation of the Carmel Valley groundwater via wells by the California-American Water Co. to supply Monterey and vicinity. The Carmel groundwater basin could easily support the Valley residents if its own water resources were not "robbed."

Nothing can be thrown away, really. Everything has to go somewhere. When resources are extracted, shuffled or discarded, they have an effect on the ecosystem they are taken from — and on the ecosystem in which they are dumped.

Living things have organized themselves into ecosystems, or communities of mutual dependence and support. Many species of plants and animals work together to ensure their own survival. Man needs to plan to be able to adapt to the ecosystem.

Ecology is easy to understand. It is simply the way living things, including man, interrelate to one another and to the earth, air and water to support life on our planet — or in our county. The root meaning of "ecology" is "earth household," or "housekeeping on earth."

Each species within an ecosystem has its own niche, its own household. The wider the niche spectrum — the more life opportunities each species has — the more stable the ecosystem. If people, for example, could eat only lobster, the human race would have become extinct long ago.

Unfortunately, man sees his relationship with nature and with himself as a never-ending battle. Man feels that he must compete with other men and conquer nature. Building a dam, for example — or building a sewage treatment plant.

Our demand for endless economic growth results in mountains of garbage and the permanent exhaustion of much of the earth's irreplaceable resources.

(Editor's note: Patchick, 48, was appointed to the Monterey County Planning Commission by Supervisor Sam Farr. The appointment was confirmed by the supervisors on Jan. 31. Patchick, a geologist, lives in Pacific Grove. He released this statement earlier this week as a "position paper.")

By Big Sur resident

National park idea rapped

By PAULA WALLING

This is meant as an open letter to Ansel Adams regarding the Park Service proposal for Big Sur.

We have just about reached the point where if anyone else climbs on the bandwagon to save Big Sur, it will collapse. The best thing that could happen to preserve Big Sur is for no one to know where it is.

I hope that this land remains essentially unchanged for the generations to come. But I foresee grim consequences if your plan of federal domination over the area comes to pass. Your proposal, while it may work for your generation and mine and possibly one more, will not work in the long run. Such a proposal would mean giving up control of Monterey County to the nation in general, saying that they can better handle our land. I don't believe that.

For a short time, the idea might provide some protection against a local developer. But to put it in the words of a Monterey architect who has a home down here, "The park is a development." He meant the State Park, but it goes even more for a National Park.

I, too, worry about the rash of panic building perpetrated by the Coastal Plan. When people fear the loss of their land, they react with panic (e.g., the Rocky Point area, Pfeiffer Ridge and Otter Cove). They develop land they had left untouched for years. When you threaten people, they react.

To quote Nathaniel Owings, "When they started out at Point Reyes, everybody was a sheep farmer, and by the time the seashore went through, everyone was a land developer."

People feel forced to build or lose to the lowest bidder, the government. This kind of building is considered most unfortunate by those of us who live here and see the changes daily.

But had you thought that there might be something worse? If the government owned the land (or any more of it — they own most of it now), Monterey County is likely to become "useful," its resources irresistible to a growing population. And that population, not our local one, would control the power to develop according to their needs, not ours. Which is worse for the land, restricted housing or dams, atomic power plants, offshore drilling and mining? All these and more are under consideration by the U.S. government for the area you propose be nationalized.

If the federal government owns all this land, who in heaven's name can stop them from reducing it to rubble "for the common good." Consider Amchitka. Could anyone? Could the Sierra Club? Could the people through pressures on their congressmen and women stop that outrageous atomic blast? Of course not. And, of course, you say, that won't happen here. No, I doubt it.

I submit for your consideration that the present arrangement, because it has a system of checks and balances, is the best we can have, awkward though it may be.

Big Sur is privately owned and county controlled, state owned and federally owned. Federal land includes the Los Padres National Forest, Hunter Liggett Military Reservation, Point Sur Naval Facility and two U.S. Coast Guard facilities. The state parks include Pfeiffer Big Sur State Park, Molera, J. P. Burns, John Little. Recent purchases and land slated for acquisition by the state is too extensive to list. Additionally, there is talk of locally owned and maintained land trusts.

I like to think of this dispersed ownership as American democracy on a small scale; that is, the three branches of government with a free press keeping close watch over all of them. Permit me this analogy. In Big Sur, we have three governmental agencies, the county, state, and federal, with local citizens who are familiar with the land acting as the free press. We are the only ones, in fact, who can keep close watch over it.

Here are some reasons the present system of checks and balances needs to continue.

Monterey County (and of course Big Sur) unfortunately finds itself between two metropolitan areas whose people, as the years go on, are going to make greater and greater demands on its land. Indeed, they have already. But I'm not so concerned about our being a recreational resource (though that can be exceedingly damaging to the environment). What concerns me is our proximity to these cities, and the destructive use they may wish to make of this county.

As these cities grow, demands for fuel, power, water, minerals, lumber and so on could cause tremendous environmental damage to this area. People will not be without these conveniences. They will find a way, the easiest usually.

The people of Monterey County would be shocked and outraged if two atomic power plants were to spring up in the area you propose be nationalized. Yet the potential, indeed the likelihood, of such a proposal is great. Or suppose our mountains begin to look desirable for burying nerve gas, poisons, or nuclear waste products. The federal government still wants offshore drilling in these treacherous, geologically unstable seas by 1981 — a certain disaster for the sea otter and yearly migrating California grey whales, shorebirds and the entire kelp bed ecosystem — as if staving off a deep-water port weren't enough! And you want more federal control?

The time will come when only this present system with state, county, and local citizens will be able to hold the federal bureaucracy at bay. If they own

Dear Editor:

I wish every registered Carmel citizen who plans to vote in the City Council election could have heard Howard Brunn yesterday before a public hearing at the county courthouse.

Howard Brunn addressed the hearing in his typical "common sense approach" manner. It was so refreshing to hear someone take a complicated subject and reduce it to simple common sense terms.

I have watched Howard do this hundreds of times since I first met Howard back in the fall of 1950.

Carmel will be the winner if they elect Howard Brunn to the Carmel City Council on March 7.

Dear Editor:

Mike Brown is up for re-election to the Carmel City Council. He deserves to be returned to the post he has so faithfully executed these past four years. He spent most of his life in Carmel and it is well known that his heart is here. He has no special ax to grind — only to represent the residents of Carmel to the best of his ability. And his ability is singular in that he thoroughly prepares himself for each item on the agenda and speaks knowledgeably thereof.

I no longer live within the city limits of Carmel and therefore cannot vote for Mike Brown. I offer this letter to those who might not know of his outstanding dedication.

Hope glimmers

Dear Editor:

Hurrah for Gasper Cardinale, newly elected president of the Carmel Business Association, who gives us the first glimmer of hope that the business community will cooperate to control truck deliveries and seek solutions to the downtown parking crunch, which makes shopping so difficult for residents and visitors alike and which overflows far into the surrounding residential areas in a most unfair and unattractive way.

His suggestion that underground parking be placed beneath Devendorf Park (Pine Cone, Jan. 26) is an excellent one. It also is the logical spot for public restrooms.

To avoid congestion, perhaps the double-level parking area might be extended beneath Junipero up the hill to about Third, where an entrance might connect with the truck route from the Carpenter Street entrance to Carmel.

Perhaps a large lower-level space should be reserved for all day business people parking unless they could be persuaded to take buses into Carmel.

Another obvious place for underground parking is Sunset Center, beneath a raised and landscaped play area for all ages at the north end; beneath the present parking area alongside the theater with elevator to the lobby; and beneath the proposed pool at the south end, also with elevator leading to covered walkway to the lobby.

Underground parking for the Golden Bough Theater could be provided beneath the condemned theater behind it, relieving the surrounding residents of the constant irritation of blocked driveways, trash and noise. In the daytime, the structure could double for special events at La Playa, Carmel Foundation, the churches or the beach.

No one likes the idea of parking structures in our beloved village, but we must face the fact that they are essential and get away from the idea that they would just encourage more visitors. If we charge yearly parking fees as they do at national parks, it will sift out those who do not appreciate the unique qualities of Carmel. However, the parking structures need not be visible.

Another way of reducing the traffic load and need for downtown parking would be a system of shuttle buses as Mr. Cardinale suggested, or a loop system of small buses to cover the outlying districts and environs of Carmel as Jack Collins, our new city administrator, suggested.

These would be a boon to the elderly and handicapped who do not drive and to those who would like to save gasoline and the bother of driving, as well. With such a system, an ordinance could eliminate the string of unsightly parked cars and noisy motorcycles which disfigure Scenic Blvd.

Quiet, fumeless electric buses such as they have at Community Hospital and the Hyatt House, with add-ons as they do at Disneyland, could be designed especially for Carmel and be less expensive, labor, maintenance and fuelwise than any other type of bus.

Of course, all this would cost money. Besides in-lieu parking fees already collected but unspent, there is state gasoline tax and federal money for transportation to draw on and there would no doubt be a 30-year bonded indebtedness to be paid off by parking fees.

What Carmelite would object to an extra dollar or two a month for such services?

Schools dilemma

for a return to teaching basic skills. I've spoken to many others who have learned to thread their kids through the schools by carefully picking and choosing their teachers.

"Oh, don't get stuck with that one," they say.

"Your kid will never learn anything in HIS class," I've heard.

What about the hundreds of trusting parents who believe the myth that Carmel schools are comparable to those of Beverly Hills, Hillsborough, San Marino and other posh communities?

There are lots of concerned parents who say Carmel used to rank with those schools, but, alas, no more.

I have a specific suggestion for parents to ponder: let's create some special classes at Carmel Middle School for children whose parents want to emphasize the basic skills. This was done several years ago in the neighboring Monterey Peninsula Unified School District at Larkin Junior High School. The children stay with one teacher all day. They don't move from classroom to classroom. For some it's dreary. Some kids might think it's tough. It certainly isn't as much fun as attending regular classes.

This was attempted a few years ago at Carmel Middle School. In a little-publicized program, parents of fifth graders could opt for the basic skills classrooms. The program dwindled for lack of interest.

With the awakening nationwide interest for more attention to the basic skills, maybe it's time we ask our school board trustees and the administration to move with the times.

There have been some moves in that direction, but school board trustees tell me they lack input from parents. It should be noted that shifting energies and manpower to basic skills will mean other programs will have to suffer. Tough choices might have to be made.

If you want more emphasis on the basics, call or write all of the five school board trustees below. A new superintendent will be hired in April, according to the district schedule. You may be able to have a voice in the kind of person who is selected for this key position.

If you're concerned, here is your chance to do something about it.

the land or have first option on it, we have no checks, no balances, no power whatever.

A national park, reserve, seashore or any other national designation is dangerous to the future of Monterey County and Big Sur because in "national emergency," such park or reserve land may, by simple paper shuffling, be turned over in part or in total to any number of agencies — such as the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers (for dam and arsenal building), the Atomic Energy Commission (for power plant construction), the Bureau of Mines (for mineral extraction), or the Department of Interior (for offshore drilling).

The people who live near the land are best prepared to keep watch over it.

It isn't just a matter of what you call "the inevitable, selfish, individualistic sense of potential loss" by local people. We love the land most. We live on it. We know it. And we, the local people, are best suited to taking care of it.

I've mentioned some potential radical consequences your proposal might bring upon future generations. What about more immediate undesirable consequences?

National parks are beset with littering, water and air pollution, fires, vandalism, and violent crime. A national designation would bring an enormous influx of visitors and would, at the same time, bring a higher crime rate to the Monterey Peninsula in general and Carmel Highlands in particular — as well as in Big Sur.

Now if Big Sur business people were greedy, you'd think they'd want all this increased revenue. Not one I know of favors the idea.

Your proposal would line the pockets of a few people, while drastically deteriorating the tax base of the county and driving taxes up for the average Peninsula homeowner, according to the tax assessor's office.

Because you have national and international prominence and credibility, you also have the ability to create a monster for future generations to try to undo. Please reconsider.

Council trio irked by temporary's hiring

The hiring of a new city clerk could become a political issue Tuesday night when the Carmel City Council gathers for its last meeting before the March 7 elections.

The appointment was stalled last Monday when councilmen complained about the method by which a temporary clerk was hired.

Patricia L. O'Hearn, 37, of Monterey, has been Carmel's acting city clerk since Jan. 16. She replaced Beverly Taylor, who moved to San Francisco. The councilmen questioned whether City Administrator Jack Collins had the power to hire her. The city code gives the City Council the power to hire the city attorney, city treasurer and city clerk. Collins has the power to hire and fire all other city employees.

The matter was referred to the council committee on administration on a 3-2 vote. [redacted] Brown, Helen Arnold and Mayor Gunnar Norberg voted for the study. Councilmen David Hughes and Bernard Anderson voted against it. Norberg and Brown are the only members of the committee.

"It puzzled me," Brown remarked of the clerk's hiring. "I was surprised all at once to learn we have a new city clerk."

"We don't yet," Mrs. Arnold replied.

Mrs. Arnold was a member of the committee that interviewed five of the 30 job applicants. Collins and the former clerk also were on the committee.

"I'm sorry if I got out of line," Collins apologized to the City Council. "I had no direction from the City Council to do otherwise."

Mrs. O'Hearn was an assistant to the executive director of the San Francisco Housing Authority for four years.

"I hope the council decides on Mrs. O'Hearn," Collins said.

Brown said his request for the committee study was intended to define powers at City Hall. "It is for clarification of what the City Council should do and what the City Administrator should do."

Three reappointed to emergency care panel

Representatives of three Carmel agencies have been reappointed to the county Emergency Medical Care Committee by the Board of Supervisors.

The committee acts in an advisory capacity to the board and County Health Department on emergency medical services and related matters.

Reappointed for two-year terms are:

- Jay Hudson, associate administrator of the Community Hospital of Monterey Peninsula;
- Robert Updike, fire chief of the Carmel Fire Department; and
- Hank Weston, ranger of the Carmel Hills Station, California Department of Forestry.

'Early retirement' for aged but able Carmel fire truck

In an action Councilman Bernard Anderson called "a nice neighborly act," the Carmel City Council granted the use Monday of the fire department's 1930 Mack truck by the Cachagua Volunteer Fire Department. The city will retain title to the engine.

"It is not valuable to the city department, nor is there a proper place to store it," remarked City Administrator Jack Collins. He called the action "the solution the City Council has long sought."

The 48-year-old fire truck has been stored at five different locations in the past 10 years. It is no longer usable as a first-line engine in Carmel, according to the fire department.

The Cachagua Volunteer Fire Department also offered to "try and restore" the engine. The vehicle has been out of service since 1966.

"The engine is only 48 years old, not 62. We are granting it an early retirement," quipped Councilman David Hughes.

More debate scheduled Tuesday

City Council adopts plan for multi-unit housing

NEXT WEEK THE Carmel City Council will try to build on the foundation it laid Monday for a new residential zoning designation. The council has talked about rezoning part of a commercial district to an R-4 designation, which would permit multi-family dwellings.

The rezoning move, however, became snagged in November when City Attorney George Brehmer said the council first would have to add the R-4 designation to the list of various planning zones in Carmel.

On Monday, the City Council voted 3-2 to add the residential R-4 designation to the Carmel General Plan. Council members Mike Brown and Helen Arnold and the mayor, Gunnar Norberg, voted for the addition. Councilmen David Hughes and Bernard Anderson opposed it.

What types of land uses would be allowed in an R-4 district is the topic of a public hearing scheduled on Tuesday at the 8 p.m. City Council meeting. Backers of the rezoning in the C-2 commercial district have mentioned an R-4 designation for the stretch of Junipero Avenue, between Third and Fifth Streets.

The R-4 zone would include at least 14 land uses and 25 other uses conditional to special terms. The new zoning category is designed to allow more dwelling units, but it also could expand with special city approval to allow commercial establishments within its boundaries.

Hughes, a critic of the R-4 plan, said at Monday's meeting that the R-4 concept should be considered for areas that are not zoned commercial. He suggested that the R-4 resolution be returned to its Planning Commission authors for rewording.

At first it appeared Hughes had the support of Norberg. But Norberg wanted to make the change without further Planning Commission study. Brehmer said the rewording would be substantive and would require Planning Commission action.

Hughes said Brown, Norberg and Mrs. Arnold and the Planning Commission failed to consider all the aspects of an R-4 zone. He asked if the Planning Commission had ever considered applying an R-4 zone to areas not zoned commercial. Planning Commissioner Leslie replied that it had not.

If applied to a residential R-1 zone, the R-4 could increase the number of conditional commercial uses and allow for more multi-family dwellings.

"This is pure delaying action," Gross told the City Council, however. He said the Planning Commission had no intention of rezoning a residential R-1 zone. Only single-family houses are allowed in R-1 zones.

"I've heard a lot of buzz tonight. The City Council should take the buzz out and put the facts in," Gross, a co-author of the original R-4 report, told the councilmen.

THE R-4 RESOLUTION was intentionally delayed many times, Gross claimed.

Because the Planning Commission did not consider applying an R-4 zone in R-1 areas, the R-4 plan should be returned to the commission for further study, said Jack

Over 145 seek superintendent job

More than 145 persons have applied for the $36,000-a-year Carmel school superintendent post that will be vacant in July. The deadline for applicants was Wednesday.

The secretary to outgoing Superintendent Harris A. Taylor said 147 applications had been filed by Monday. Lola O'Brien, the secretary, said she expected several more as the deadline approached.

A special meeting was scheduled today at 4 p.m. by the school district trustees. On the short agenda was the appointment of a three-member professional screening panel to evaluate the applicants.

The panel will be composed of three educators from outside the Carmel Unified School District, said Pamela D. Smith, president of the school board. The trustees have said they will hire a new superintendent by April. Taylor, 56, has said he will resign after the school term ends in June. The panel will advance the names of eight to 12 top candidates to the trustees by Feb. 23, according to the hiring timetable adopted by the school board in December.

The second item on today's agenda was the swearing in of a fifth trustee to the board. Clayton B. Neill Jr., 48, an engineer, was appointed to the vacancy on Jan. 10. His appointment was provisional, however, because state law allows 30 days in which such appointments can be challenged by an iniative petition.

The seat has been vacant since Jan. 1 when Edward T. Reilly Jr. resigned. Reilly, elected in March 1977, resigned because of a job transfer.

Neill had no voting rights during the 30-day waiting period.

He has served two terms on the school board, but resigned in 1969 after his second term expired. Before appointing Neill, the school board interviewed 15 candidates for the post in a lengthy public session.

Ugly rite of passage

THE SCHOOL yard fight. It attracts a crowd pronto, leaves at least two persons bruised and cut and, without doubt, is a common rite of passage for youths. This tussle between two boys happened recently in front of Carmel Middle School. (George T. C. Smith photo)

R-4 zone adopted

Collins, the city administrator.

"It may be around for 30 years. I find it very appropriate that it be referred back," Collins said of the plan.

"I find it completely inappropriate to refer it back," replied Norberg. Brown added that it would be a "disservice" to the Planning Commission.

Brian Finnigan, attorney for the Carmel Community Property Owners Association, warned the City Council that it was a mistake to "tie its hands" by adopting single-purpose zoning.

Mrs. Arnold showed the lengthy Planning Commission R-4 report to the audience. She said the R-4 resolution, if passed, would correct errors in Carmel's zoning and past development.

"Instead of doing away with problems, it will raise new ones," countered Anderson. He argued that new conditions placed on R-4 businesses could decrease their values.

"I'd like to remind you that Carmel is primarily, essentially and predominantly a residential city," said Norberg, reciting the preamble to the Carmel zoning code. Both boos and cheers rang out from the audience.

The measure narrowly was approved, but Hughes followed with a separate proposal that the Planning Commission consider applying R-4 zoning to areas that are "not very successful" under current R-1 zoning. His motion passed 4-1. Mrs. Arnold voted against it.

Subdivided in 1928?

Strange history of lot

There are times when it doesn't seem worth waiting for change.

Take the case of Pebble Beach property owner Grover Hermann. He owns a 13.5-acre lot that he wants to divide into two parcels.

On Tuesday, Hermann appealed a County Planning Commission denial of the split. The Board of Supervisors heard the appeal and continued the hearing for two weeks to allow for a hearing on its environmental impact.

"In 1928, a man named Perry split this property into two lots," said Carl Hooper, of Bestor Engineers Inc., Hermann's representative. "The split wasn't recorded with the county as it was not required in those days. But the two lots were shown on a Pebble Beach map dated 1928."

According to Hooper, this was a legitimate lot split. County officials, however, have no record of it.

In the early 1950s, the two lots were acquired by Hermann, who now lives on the property. In 1973, he decided to split the lot into four parcels, three of which would front the 17-Mile Drive.

The supervisors approved the split at that time, but Hermann then had to receive approval from the State Coastal Commission. The commission, acting in 1974, refused to allow four lots despite the fact the land it was zoned for minimum one-acre lots.

According to Hooper, the commission gave vocal approval for a split into two lots. But at that time, Hermann decided to wait a few years in hopes that conditions would improve, allowing him four lots and perhaps a higher value for the property.

But waiting caused more problems for Hermann. In 1975, the State Public Utilities Commission issued the ban on new water meter connections by the California-American Water Co. Thus, Hermann was denied water supply for any new lots he wished to create.

County has no record of the split

And in 1976, a state mandate came into effect stating that all contiguous lots owned by a single owner would become one lot — thereby erasing the 1928 lot line Hermann had on his property.

"It's been one thing after another," said Hooper, shaking his head. "Now we have to wait two more weeks for the supervisors to have a hearing on the negative declaration and decide whether to grant the lot split."

It is Hooper's contention that the supervisors should approve the split now. "This property lies within the Coastal Zone. Many further steps are required prior to occupying a home and the consequent start of water use. These will take several years to accomplish, by which time it is very probable that the PUC order prohibiting service installations for existing mains will be lifted."

The planning commissioners voted unanimously to deny the lot split on the basis that if water was not available for the new lot, no new lot should be created.

"There are lots of lots on the shelves and weekly we are creating new lots with no water hookups," said Supervisor Sam Farr. "We have to concern ourselves with what burden we are placing on a limited water supply."

A hearing to determine the environmental assessment of the property is scheduled on Tuesday, Feb. 21, in Salinas. The supervisors then will make a decision on the lot split.

Modest garbage fee hike offered to franchise

ACTION ON A requested $1.25 hike in monthly garbage bills was delayed this week by the Carmel City Council. The council indicated, however, that it may grant a modest increase next Tuesday, when the issue will be considered again.

The John Roscelli Corp., the franchised refuse collector in Carmel, filed for the rate increase in January. Its management said the firm had lost money on operations here.

Residential customers presently pay $3.25 a month for service. Jack Collins, the city administrator, told the council that only a 50-cent increase could be justified.

The firm said when it filed the request that it could lose up to $57,000 this year if the full rate hike is not granted. The last rate increase came in January 1976.

Rising business costs prompted the Roscelli firm to seek the rate hike. Gasoline and dumping costs have risen sharply and premiums for liability coverage jumped 233 per cent in the past three years, the firm said in its request.

Before any increase is approved, Councilman Mike Brown said Monday he wants the Roscelli firm to pick up large items once a year for free.

"We are the only city on the Peninsula without that service. I won't go along with the rate increase unless the additional service is provided," Brown vowed.

Councilmember Helen Arnold agreed that the special service would "encourage people to get rid of trash."

But Councilmen David Hughes and Bernard Anderson argued against Brown's plan. Anderson said it could snowball. Hughes called it a "free lunch bit." He warned, "You won't get anything without paying for it."

The councilmen seemed to be in accord with the 50-cent fee hike. But the question about additional special services prompted Brown to request further study by the city administrator.

MAYOR GUNNAR Norberg, Brown and Arnold voted to continue the item until Tuesday. Anderson and Hughes voted against the continuation.

Norberg complained that fewer than 400 of Carmel's 600 businesses use the garbage service. He blamed businesses for filling city-owned canisters with garbage.

Elio Chiappe, president of the Roscelli Corp., blamed the 400 Carmel homes that do not use his service for part of the problem. "There are $300,000 homes that have no garbage service. What they do with their garbage, I don't know," he said.

Candidates appear next Thursday

Candidates in the three-seat Carmel City Council race are scheduled to appear next Thursday at a candidate's night sponsored by the Carmel Citizens Committee. The forum begins at 7:30 p.m. in the parish hall at All Saints' Episcopal Church.

The candidates can be questioned by members of the audience and the meeting is open to the public, according to William Doolittle, president of the nonpartisan committee.

Planning subpanel named

To lighten the hearing load on the Monterey County Planning Commission, the Board of Supervisors Tuesday created a committee with the authority to approve or disapprove minor subdivisions. The seven-member committee will be composed of one planning commissioner; the county tax assessor; directors of planning, environmental health and public works departments; the District Engineer of the Monterey County Flood Control District; and the county fire warden.

The Planning Commission will retain the authority to approve or disapprove standard subdivisions and divisions of land of 160 acres or more, regardless of the number of parcels.

"There is a need for more technical input into the subdivision process," said Supervisor Michal Moore.

"But in order that we don't stack the deck time-wise, I suggest an automatic rotation system for Planning Commission representatives on the committee," said Moore.

Supervisor Edwin Norris rejected the idea of a 10-member committee, as recommended by Ed W. DeMars, the county planning director.

"I would prefer a committee of five or seven," said Norris. "Most of these items could be acted on by a smaller voting committee and still have technical input."

Supervisor Sam Farr of Carmel felt the ordinance creating the subdivision committee was too drastic. "We have a need from the general public for input in the planning process. We have already transferred 54 functions of the board to others," Farr said.

Norris proposed a five-member committee, but at the insistence of Farr, the supervisors added representatives of the flood control district and fire warden.

Appeals of decisions by the subdivision committee will be heard by the Board of Supervisors. Evidence presented to the board on appeal will be limited to evidence presented to the minor subdivision committee.

Hearings set for inn, subdivision

Hearing dates have been set for two appeals of County Planning Commission decisions for a motel addition in Big Sur and a minor subdivision in the Carmel Valley.

Both appeals will be heard on Tuesday, Feb. 28, by the Board of Supervisors.

Frank Ramistella is seeking a use permit to allow a 36-unit addition and two staff buildings to be constructed by the Ventana Big Sur Corporation. The appeal will be heard by supervisors at 11:30 a.m.

An appeal from Edwin B. Lee on conditions placed on a minor subdivision in the Carmel Valley area will be heard at 2 p.m.

Cops find pot in locker

The Carmel Police Department discovered an ounce of marijuana in the department's property locker Saturday, but no one knows where it came from.

The marijuana was found in a small container during an annual inventory, according to the police. "It is not accounted for in any report or labeled with an appropriate case number," according to police files.

Sewer pact ready

Directors of the Carmel Sanitary District are scheduled to vote Monday on an amendment to their 1968 contract to dispose of wastewater from Pebble Beach. The amendment ties fees the district charges to the quantity of waste from Pebble Beach that it processes.

The new contract terms were approved on Jan. 26 by the directors of the Pebble Beach Sanitary District. The Carmel board is scheduled to meet at 8 p.m. to discuss the amendment and other district business. The meeting will be convened in the Carmel City Council chambers on Monte Verde.

If approved, Pebble Beach would pay a percentage of the Carmel operating cost determined by the amount of waste Pebble Beach piped to the local sewage treatment plant. It presently pays a flat one-third of the Carmel district's budget.

"If we accounted for 25 per cent of their flow, for example, then we would pay 25 per cent of their treatment and disposal costs," explained Edward Gast, general manager for the Pebble Beach sewage agency.

In addition, Pebble Beach would pay a 7 per cent administrative charge, he said.

About one-third of the waste treated by Carmel is from Pebble Beach, according to James Pruitt, a Carmel district director and chairman of a local subcommittee that negotiated the proposed contract change. He declined to explain the proposal other than to say it had been worked out over a period of several months.

The Carmel district board also is scheduled to hear progress reports Monday on construction of a $1 million solid waste digester and an update of the areawide facilities plan last revised in 1973. Kevin D. Walsh, the staff engineer from the district, said this week that work on the digester had been slowed because of recent rain and he said consultants were not yet ready to issue new information that would lead to an update of the facilities plan.

By SCOTT MacCLELLAND

IN ITS ONLY afternoon program this season, the Carmel Music Society presented the San Francisco Chamber Orchestra Sunday at Sunset Center in Carmel. The program featured two concertos by Mozart and small-orchestra works by Respighi and Mendelssohn. The soloists were David Abel, violin, and Paul Hersh, piano and viola. Edgar Braun conducted. The orchestra of about 22 players was polished and its playing was very clean and true.

Music Corner

The concert opened with Ancient Dances for Lute, Suite No. 3 by Respighi, a work for strings based on 16th-century movements by four different composers. The performance displayed the rich string sound of the orchestra which was highlighted by the splendid viola ensemble and sound that opened the second movement of this finely wrought diversion.

The concert's last piece was the Symphony No. 10 in B minor written by a 14-year-old Felix Mendelssohn. Though this two-movement work predates the composer's adolescent masterpieces, the Midsummer Night's Dream Overture and the Octet in E-flat for strings, it is remarkably mature and, in places, anticipates the Italian Symphony, the Scotch Symphony and Elijah. At times the string writing resembled the string sonatas by Rossini. It was a delightful work that stirred up a tempest or two and its fine performance was an excellent conclusion to the program.

To me, the Mozart concertos were notably less satisfying. The orchestra was every bit as "on," but conductor Braun approached the works with an emphasis on a technical excellence that left unfulfilled the humor and warmth of the music. In this, he was corroborated by soloists Hersh and Abel. Hersh was at the keyboard for Mozart's Piano Concerto No. 11 in F, K. 413. The performance was clean and musical, but lacked expression and imagination.

In the justly famous Sinfonia Concertante in E-flat, K. 364, Hersh played viola and was joined by violinist Abel. Each soloist and the conductor displayed a different conception of the music, but they all seemed to agree that it was without humor. Braun led the orchestra in tempos that were too fast to allow the music to breathe, a specific consequence of which disallowed the full impact of that brilliant crescendo in the introduction of the first movement. To this extent, the work's deeper nature also suffered.

Of the soloists, Abel was the more musical and more polished player. Abel has a fine technique and tone. His phrasing surpassed that of Hersh and Braun and, in its refinement, was a highlight of the performance. In the more tender and lyric sections, Abel played beautifully but allowed little warmth.

As violist, Hersh has a unique and inconsistent way of phrasing, sometimes with a long line in mind and sometimes in short episodes. But in either case, the phrasing is even less clear because of Hersh's stiff way of bowing. He used a bow that was too short much of the time and the legato suffered. His playing often sounded tight.

The audience was quite large and enthusiastic and the concert was a success. Pianist Ronald Turini will return to Sunset for the next Music Society program on March 18.

ROBERT LOUIS Stevenson School will be presenting the Western Opera production of Carlisle Floyd's Susannah on Saturday, Feb. 18. Almost as a prelude, RLS offered an evening of music Saturday introducing its artist-in-residence, baritone William Pell. Pell is a Reader's Digest affiliate artist with the San Francisco Opera and during his stay at RLS he has worked with the students on the campus and has sung before various groups in the community. He was joined by mezzo-soprano Linda Purdy and pianist Roslyn Frantz at the Saturday concert.

The presentation was a delight throughout. Pell does not project a big sound, but his is a pleasing and consistent voice. Complementing it is a charming and generous personality and presence. Mrs. Purdy sang beautifully and her charm on stage was an equally strong element of the evening's pleasure. Miss Frantz gave clear and sympathetic support to the singer's solos and duets. She also richly enhanced the program by playing keyboard solos between vocal sets.

The program opened with three duets by Purcell. Pell explained that the three musicians had agreed instantly that the first, Sound the Trumpet, was the perfect opener. It was. In turn, Miss Frantz played a refreshing toccata by Domenico Paradies.

Mrs. Purdy then sang two songs by Richard Strauss. She was very relaxed and Standchen, the first of the two, was especially fine. Nocturne by Samuel Barber followed and was very well sung while seeming a difficult work. Miss Frantz then played the kaleidoscopic Prophet Bird by Schumann.

Pell returned with a scene from Zaza by Leoncavallo. In it Pell revealed his marvelous acting. The aria is addressed to Zaza, a gypsy, and Pell's musical admonitions were given a heartfelt and convincing performance. He then sang the swashbuckling Sea Fever by John Ireland. This too was done with conviction and flair. A shade less successful was Return to Sorrento by DiCurtis.

Scenes from Rossini's Barber of Seville followed the intermission. The Largo al factotum was delightfully portrayed by Pell. Mrs. Purdy was ideal in the lovely aria Una voce poco fa. The two then joined for the scene and duet, Ma bravi, ma benone . . . Dunque io son.

Miss Frantz then offered a smoky and personal Waltz in E minor by Chopin.

The trio delighted the audience with the program's finale, Meredith Willson's I'll Never Say No, Romberg's The Desert Song, and Porter's Wunderbar. And Pell offered an encore, a wonderful characterization from Anderson's Shenandoah.

'I Am a Camera' to be shown at Sunset

I Am a Camera, a 1955 British movie made from the same Christopher Isherwood story as Cabaret, will be screened at the American Theater Film Festival program Tuesday, Feb. 14, at Sunset Center, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel. The program begins at 7:30 p.m.

Julie Harris recreated the role of Sally Bowles she played in the original stage production, which won the New York Drama Critics' award in 1951. The play was adapted by John Van Druten from Isherwood's Berlin Stories.

The story of a young author and a hard-living carefree girl in prewar Berlin also stars Shelley Winters.

Tickets will be available at the box office for $2. For more information, phone 624-3996.

Backgammon tourney in P.B.

Approximately 150 backgammon buffs will play in the fifth annual Pebble Beach Backgammon Championships Friday-Sunday, Feb. 10-12, at Del Monte Lodge in Pebble Beach.

The tournament, which is by invitation only, will include play in three divisions: championship, intermediate and beginner.

Proceeds will benefit the Boys Club of the Monterey Peninsula.

THE PYRAMID of Chichen Itza, the Mayan ceremonial center in Yucatan, is one of the fascinating scenes included in "Mexico: Wonderful Mexico," the Explorama travel-adventure film to be screened Thursday and Friday, Feb. 9-10, at Sunset Center, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel.

'Luv' to open Thursday at Carmel Barnyard Theatre

Luv, Murray Schisgal's clever Broadway play about life and love among a set of middle-class New Yorkers, will open Thursday, Feb. 9, for a six-week run at the Carmel Barnyard Theatre, Highway 1 and Rio Rd., Carmel. The play will be staged Thursday, Friday and Saturday evenings at 8:30 p.m. and Sunday afternoons at 2 p.m.

The play will be directed by Joseph Hanreddy, the former resident director of the Studio Theatre in Carmel, and will star Bob Lester, Wendy Goldman and Bob Colter.

The regular after-show cabaret, which begins at 11:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday evenings, stars co-hosts Bruce Tuthill and Jane Strauch in a variety show of music and comedy by many Peninsula performers.

Lunch is served at the Barnyard Theatre at noon on Sundays.

No need to rely on France for fine wines this year

The Wine Connoisseur

By ROBERT LAWRENCE BALZER

SEVERAL CIRCUMSTANCES touching the economics of the wine market are rapidly and dramatically fomenting into potential collision between California and French wines. Nearly everyone knows that 1977 was a vintage dud of almost tragic proportions in many wine regions of France.

There will be no Chablis at all, nor Muscadet nor Pouilly-Fume of the frost-struck Loire. Even Bordeaux growers of St. Emilion and Pomerol are whistling in the dark for any hope of their marginal wines. The medoc suffered equal damage in some areas and it is dubious if much wine will be able to qualify for either chateau-quality standards or district appellation of commune status.

Beaujolais Nouveau of 1977 proved to be a disappointment, but ambassadors are here now to tell us that Burgundy was spared.

Roland Thevenin, proprietor of Domaine de Chateau du Puligny-Montrachet, one of the owners of the hallowed vineyard of Le Montrachet, recently was in California as an honored guest of local Chevalier de Tastevin members. He spoke encouragingly about the '77 quality, a vintage which he said would "be excellent, but not plentiful." Of the five Burgundian wines selected for tasting in the Los Angeles area, there were none of the greatly trumpeted '76s. Those highly prized and price-escalating red and white jewels are being exhibited on the esteemed terrain of the highly regarded Vintners Club in San Francisco. Le Montrachet 1976 at $32.99 per bottle is not exactly a bargain, though it is, of course, the showpiece of Monsieur Thevenin's offerings.

IN HIS ANNUAL Sweet, Sour Grapes and Sediment Awards for 1977, my good friend and colleague, Nathan Chroman, selected among his few Sour Grape Awards, one to "French White Burgundy producers who look at the 1976 vintage as 'get-rich-quick' salvation. Many have stopped selling 1976 waiting for market increases, thereby pricing the American consumer out of it. The '75 Bordeaux owners may be also looking for the same financial killing."

Is the memory of the French negociants so short that they cannot remember the effects of their price escalations on the '72s of Bordeaux? A repeat performance with the '75s of Bordeaux and the '76s of Burgundy will find a not-so-naive American consumer market ready, willing and able to turn elsewhere for its wine supply.

It might be timely to suggest, if French wine producers wish to soften the American market, that the wine trade be made a two-way street. Certainly American wines should be granted the same trade entry into the European markets that we give European wines in our own. Label nomenclature problems can be solved easily. We're no longer cemented into generic names like "Burgundy" and "Chablis" for survival.

It was interesting to see Thevenin presenting in turnabout imitation a varietal wine at his Los Angeles tasting, a "Pinot Chardonnay du Chateau 1973," obviously aimed at those American wine buyers who associate premium quality with varietal titles. Alas, this wine was a thin, sharp, acidic white burgundy not worth its $4 price tag. We did not taste any of the highly touted '76s, but the best of the white Burgundies presented did have some pleasant Chardonnay character. It was from Monsieur Thevenin's parcel of the Premier Cru vineyard, Les Folatieres, labeled as Puligny-Montrachet Clos de Chaniot 1975, priced at approximately $8.

This was not a good year for Burgundy and at that price, I told one of the representatives quite frankly, I thought it not as good as half a dozen fine California wines selling for less money. He and Thevenin would discover at the August Vintners Club that that well-established group of enophiles had reenacted the famed Paris, May 24, 1976 Tasting of Steven Spurrier, with similar results favoring California wines, on Jan. 11 and 12.

WITHIN ONLY months of that celebrated Paris tasting, I staged the first American reenactment, in which Stag's Leap 1973 Cabernet Sauvignon scored first position over several chateau-bottled clarets, and it did so again at the Vintners Club in San Francisco.

At my restaging, among the Chardonnay wines, Chalone 1974 scored first, Chateau Montelena 1973 second — over Puligny Montrachet, and similarly so at the Vintners Club. The California victories became doubly confirmed, from responsible quarters.

We are not starved for fine-quality wines of the Chardonnay grape. It seems the price collision for the '76 white Burgundies with California Chardonnay wines is inevitable. Let us hope our friends in Bordeaux won't follow the Burgundian price-hiking techniques with their wonderful '75s, but if they do, we have a wealth of California Cabernet Sauvignon wines of fine quality and fair price to turn to, in increasing supplies for years to come. The drought in California is over — in more ways than one.

Brown Bag Cinema program Thursday at Sunset Center

A convivial afternoon of conversation and a fascinating film program is promised at the monthly Brown Bag Cinema Thursday, Feb. 16, at Sunset Center, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel. Everyone is welcome to attend the free program.

Participants traditionally gather at 12:30 p.m. to share conversation while they eat their brown bag lunches, on the terrace if the weather is nice, inside if it is not. Sunset Center provides the coffee.

The film program, which begins at 1:30 p.m., will include The Sunbeam Solution and California 2000 A.D. Sunbeam examines the problem of finding an energy source to transport man into the 21st century, considering such alternatives as wind and tidal power, geothermal power and the use of other natural elements.

California 2000 A.D. looks at technological advances in California, including an English-speaking computer, a garbage-collecting robot and the square tomato. Dr. Linus Pauling provides an absorbing and sometimes chilling preview of a brave new world dominated by technology.

Cat show this weekend at Monterey Fairgrounds

Cats galore — both the long and shorthair varieties — will compete for the title "best cat in show" at the American Shorthair West Cat Show Saturday and Sunday, Feb. 11-12, at the Monterey County Fairgrounds, Fairgrounds and Garden Rds., Monterey. Show hours both days are 10 a.m.-5 p.m.

Shorthairs will be judged Saturday and longhairs Sunday. Each cat will be assessed by four separate judges.

Among the breeds to be exhibited are Abyssinians, Burmese, American shorthairs, exotic shorthairs, Siamese, Russian blues, Manx, colorpoints, Korats, Havana browns, Balinese, Himalayans and Persians.

Male Man, a brown mackerel tabby owned by Jasmine Tucker of San Jose, will be on exhibition. From his humble beginnings as an alley cat in Washington, where Mrs. Tucker found him, Male Man went on to become the best American shorthair in the country. Mrs. Tucker says Male Man is currently negotiating with a cat food company to become the "cat personality" for cat food commercials.

In addition to the "bluebloods," plain old alley cats will be entered in the household pet classification. Among the household pets will be Fat Cat, a large Siamese cat with white feet who lives at the offices of Cypress Computer Corporation in Monterey.

Admission is $1.50 for adults, $1 for senior citizens and military personnel and 75 cents for children.

For more information, phone show secretary Jasmine Tucker, San Jose (408) 268-8946.

Openhouse Saturday at RLS school

An open house for prospective students and interested parents is scheduled Saturday, Feb. 11, at Robert Louis Stevenson School, Forest Lake Rd., Pebble Beach.

The program, from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., will include an introduction to the academic program, conferences with individual teachers and tours of the physical facilities.

Robert Louis Stevenson is an independent college preparatory, coeducational day and boys' resident school for grades nine to twelve.

For more information, write to Philip P. Perkins, Director of Admissions, P.O. Box 657, Pebble Beach, Calif. 93953, or phone 624-1257.

Explorama film to be screened at Sunset

Mexico: Wonderful Mexico, a film in the Explorama travel-adventure series, will be screened at Sunset Center, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel, Thursday and Friday, Feb. 9-10. The program begins at 8:15 p.m. each evening.

Narrated by the producer, Thayer Soule, the film includes footage from Mexico City, Cozumel, Acapulco, Taxco, Puebla, Guadalajara, Puerto Vallarta, Mazatlan, La Paz, Guaymas, Patzcuaro, Oaxaca, San Cristobal de la Casas and at Mayan and Aztec ruins.

"What I emphasize in this film," says Soule, "is the Mexico of today, which is greatly changed from a decade ago, although it still is a land of friendly people with scores of great sights and fascinating places. The first half of my film concentrates on Mexican history, with particular emphasis on the Indian culture. In the second half of the film, I try to present highlights of some of the familiar tourist places of the country and some of the lesser known regions, many of which have only recently become accessible to the traveler."

Soule, who spent three months in Mexico producing the film, which is his eighth about Mexico, says, "Mexico is still a traveler's delight and, although it is changing, it is definitely not spoiled."

Tickets, at $3.75, are available at the Julia Marlowe Box Office in Sunset Center.

For more information, phone 624-3996.

Sierra Club plans Valentine's Day hikes

The second annual Valentine's Day hike over the pastoral trails of Toro Park is planned Saturday, Feb. 11, by the local Ventana Chapter of the Sierra Club. Members of other chapters and interested nonmembers are welcome to join the outing.

Hikers will meet for the eight-mile hike at Cinema 70 in Del Monte Shopping Center, Monterey, at 8:30 a.m. or at the far parking lot in Toro Park at 9 a.m. Bring lunch, water and a pleasant disposition. For more information, phone leader Larry Lapidus, 1-422-5529, or John Doering, 1-422-2541.

Also on the outing calendar is an easy-to-moderate hike to Blue Rock Ridge, Sunday, Feb. 12. The eight-mile hike involves about 800 feet of elevation gain. Sights promised include the northern edge of the Marble-Cone fire, a view of Uncle Sam Mountain and Danish Creek watershed and maybe even a full Los Padres Reservoir.

Bring lunch, water and boots and meet at 8:30 a.m. at Brinton's in the Carmel Rancho Shopping Center, Highway 1 and Carmel Valley Rd., Carmel, or at 9 a.m. at the Bank of America parking lot in Carmel Valley Village.

For more information, phone leader Merrill Jones, 624-3052 evenings.

Three plays take the Sunset stage

By RICHARD TYLER
Director, Sunset Community and Cultural Center

HENRY BECQUE, Christopher Isherwood, Harold Pinter—what do these three playwrights have in common? They all are European, their plays present man's frailties and performances of their works are being done in Carmel next week.

Henry Becque was born in France in 1837. He was one of the outstanding exponents of naturalistic drama. He had a hard life and was of a somewhat quarrelsome and misanthropic turn of mind. His early works were overlooked in their first productions and only appreciated in revivals. He wrote two plays during the 1880s with which his name is usually associated — Les Corbeaux (1882) and La Parisienne (1885) — both naturalistic dramas of great form and uncompromising honesty. They present rapacious or amoral characters who are unaware even of their own degradation and, unlike the "well-made" play against which they were a reaction, they leave it to the audience to draw its own conclusions, merely presenting the facts and not commenting on them.

This was in the tradition of Emile Zola's "slice of life" of which Becque's comedies, as they were called, were the natural outcome. La Parisienne is currently playing at the Forest Theater at the Theater-in-the-Ground, presented by the Staff Players of the Children's Experimental Theater. The play can be seen Friday, Saturday and Sunday through Feb. 19 at 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $4 for adults, $2 for children and can be reserved by phoning 624-1531.

Christopher Isherwood's stories of Berlin in the 1930s are still highly regarded. In their clarity, crispness, enduring appeal and light-fingered grasp of a historic crisis, they have both rewarded and plagued him for years. Born in England in 1904, he has lived in California since World War II. He has written plays, film scripts, travel books and other nonfiction but is primarily a novelist. Much of what he wrote was autobiographical. He went to Berlin in 1929 and gave English lessons to support himself. At times penniless, he came to know at first hand the slums of pre-Hitler Berlin, the decadent night spots and their seedy patrons. With the triumph of Nazism, he left Germany in 1933. The play I Am a Camera, adapted by John Van Druten from Sally Bowles and another story in Goodbye to Berlin, won the New York Drama Critics' award for 1951 and was made into a film. Isherwood's promiscuous English girl working in a Berlin cafe later became the heroine of the musical Cabaret, a 1966 Broadway hit that also fared well in its 1972 screen version. The original movie version of I Am a Camera, starring Julie Harris, Laurence Harvey and Shelley Winters, is the next film in the American Theater Film Festival and will be shown at Sunset Theater on Tuesday at 7:30 p.m.

Harold Pinter also was born in England in 1930. He lived in the East End of London, an area not unlike New York's lower East Side. In 1948, he enrolled at the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art. He did not remain there long, for he found there what he described as a "terrible transfer of affectation and unreality, ankle bands and golden hair." In 1949, he joined a repertory company, the first of many, and during the next 10 years he toured the provinces of England and Ireland. Pinter's first four plays have been called "comedies of menace." They are The Room, The Dumbwaiter, The Birthday Party, his first full-length play, and A Slight Ache. The Birthday Party was the first of Pinter's plays to be performed professionally. It failed. In April 1960, his second full-length play, The Caretaker, opened in London to critical acclaim, which it also garnered in the United States. The critic T. C. Worsley defines Pinter's work as the "theater of insecurity" and attributes the "dazzling clarity and vividness" of his writing to his acute awareness of "the insecurity that lurks behind the lives of most people today." It is difficult to overestimate the importance of Pinter's dialogue, since it is the isolation of each individual whose wish is to make contact with others and his fear of doing so which is at the root of most of Pinter's work. In 1965, he wrote a new full-length play, The Homecoming. It is this play that will be performed at Sunset Theater, Friday and Saturday, Feb. 17 and 18. Produced by the Reunion Performance Group, The Homecoming is under the direction of Martin Veselich.

TWO INTERESTING views on society and our needs will be the subject for the Brown Bag Cinema next Thursday at 1:30 p.m. Oil is running out; nuclear reactors are too dangerous. What source of power remains to transport man into the 21st century? The brightest prospect would seem to be solar energy. There also are other untapped sources of energy already on earth: wind and tidal power, geothermal power and the use of other natural elements such as hydrogen. The Sunbeam Solution discusses these and other sources of energy.

Nowhere in the world is technology more advanced than in California. Nowhere in the world is the future so close. This report looks at technological advances like an English-speaking computer, the garbage-collecting robot and the square tomato. It asks Americans what they think about the effects of revolutionary technology on their society. Nobel Prize winner Dr. Linus Pauling speaks about the shape of a new world of infinite abundance. California 2000 A.D. is an absorbing and sometimes chilling preview of a brave new world dominated by technology. Enjoy your lunch on the terrace before this performance. We meet at 12:30 p.m.

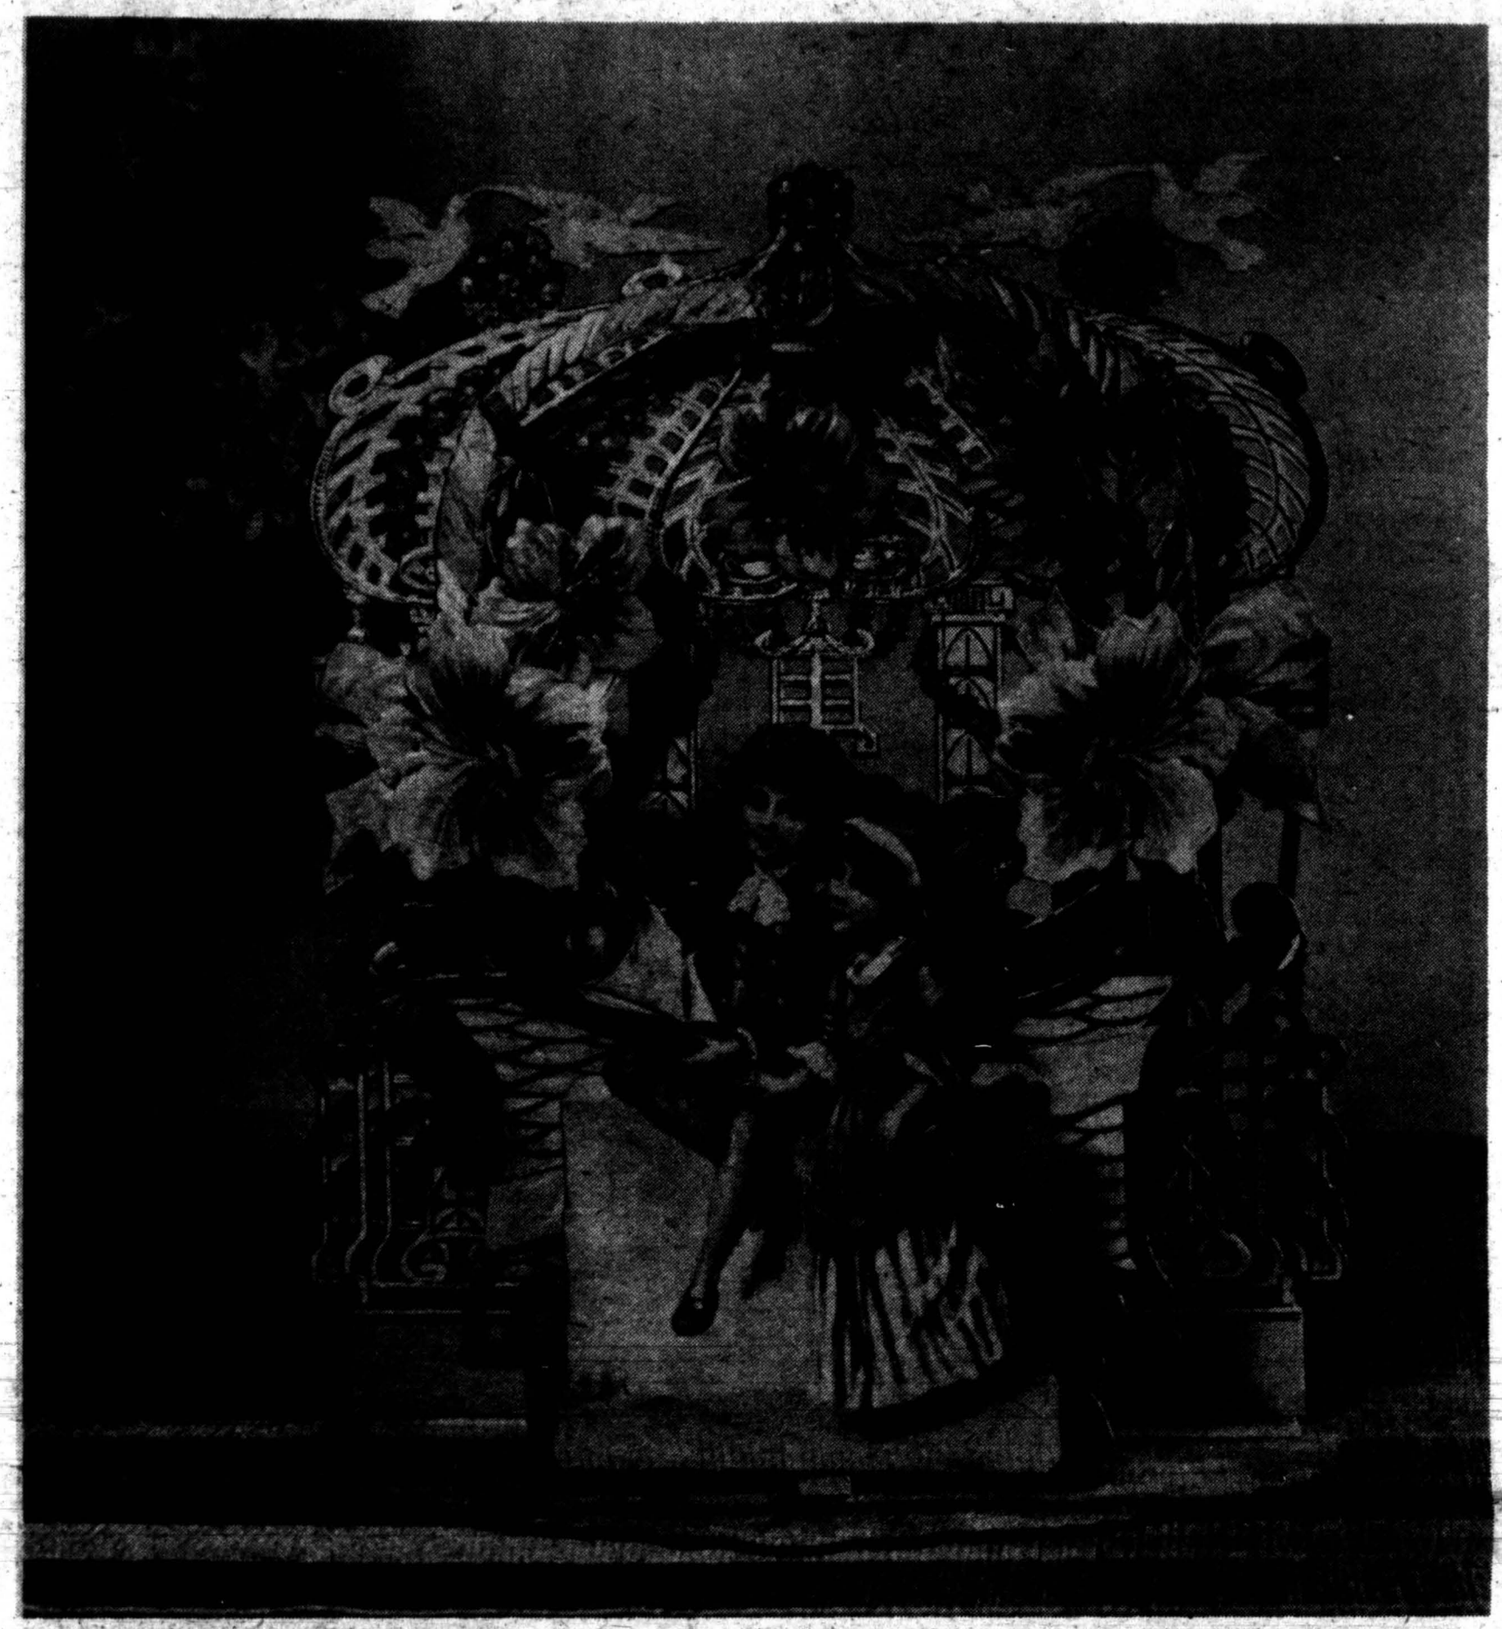
One century of 'I love you'



VALENTINES HAVE become more ornate since the early 1800s. The invention of paper lace and delicate cutouts caused the change. Here, a young couple is surrounded by flowers and doves — popular symbols found on the cards.

Vast collection of valentines traces eras of courtship

FEBRUARY 14 has special meaning to people in love. The feast of Saint Valentine, however, has taken a back seat to the exchange of cards inscribed with verse declaring amorous devotion.

In the last 20 years, Louise Shaw has become known as the "Valentine Lady" of Carmel for her collection of 3,000 of these romantic massives.

"I'm a sentimentalist," said Mrs. Shaw. "Collecting valentines is something I can't explain. Some people just need to collect things."

Valentine's Day celebrates the festival of a Christian martyr beheaded in Rome in the year 270. The exchange of cards on this day is said to have no connection with the saint.

Some researchers, however, say the Roman Catholic Church used Feb. 14 as the day to Christianize the pagan holiday of Lupercalia. On that day, girls' names were placed into a box. Boys then selected the name of their "girl" for the following year.

Mrs. Shaw regrets the decision by the Roman Catholic Church to remove Valentine from its official list of saints.

saints.

"It was a very sad day for me," she said.

"The heyday of valentines came between 1830 and 1850," said Mrs. Shaw. "The first valentine message was sent in 1415 by the Duke of Orleans, who was imprisoned in the Tower of London. It's not known whom he sent it to."

The oldest valentine in Mrs. Shaw's collection is a single-page Bartolozzi engraving titled The Endless Knot of Love. Two cupids are shown entwining ribbons and flowers.

"Most people don't like some of the older valentines because they are not pretty," said Mrs. Shaw. But over the years, the invention of a process which yielded paper lace caused valentines to become more ornate.

"The British were such sentimentalists," she said. "They sometimes enclosed tiny messages within the card."

MRS. SHAW BEGAN colleting valentines as a child. They were saved by her mother and returned when she reached adulthood.

It wasn't until 1952 that Mrs. Shaw became serious about collecting valentines. An assortment of antique valentines on sale at a department store caught her fancy. She began looking for cards in antique shops. As her collection grew, so did the popularity of her talks each spring on the history of the patron saint of lovers.

Mrs. Shaw stopped giving valentine talks when her husband died five years ago. "He never gave me a valentine," she said, "but I loved him just the same."

A fire in February 1976 nearly destroyed her collection. "A short circuit (in the electrical wiring) damaged the albums and books, but not a valentine was lost," Mrs. Shaw said. The rest of the house suffered severe damage.

Today, Mrs. Shaw sits on a sofa and chairs covered with red and white Victorian prints. Some of her valentines decorate the house in frames and glass cases.

"Collecting is like breathing — it's something I have to do," said Mrs. Shaw.

LOUISE SHAW holds an antique valentine depicting a pair of doves drawing a cart covered with flowers. Such ornate valentines were popular in the early 1900s.

Speaking French, dining Japanese

By PHYLLIS JERVEY

Who can better coordinate fine food, clever conversation, dramatic setting and congenial guests than the Jerome Carlsons of Carmel?

The Carlsons usually occupy the amazing studio home of their lifelong friends, Mr. and Mrs. Ansel Adams, when the famed photographer is on tour. Almost in space is the spectacular Carmel Highlands home built into an outsize granite cliff.

How cheerful is the baronial fireplace glowing with huge logs while we sip aperitifs. Then the Great Gong booms with an echoing drum to announce "diner est servi." Our hostess serves a charmingly simple family-style supper with dispatch. She is a firm believer that hot foods should be served hot; cold foods quite the opposite.

Jehanne Salinger-Carlson, honorary president of the local Alliance Francaise, keeps the table talk at a fast clip. An erudite discussion transpired between Nikola Radovich of Yugoslavia and Nelo Drizari (the latter has a recent book out called Circle of Enchantment), both Carmel bachelors. Jehanne listens with genuine interest. Our mutual friend, Belgian Olivie, was the only other female guest. The mutual language was French. I wonder when I can inquire, "What do you men prefer to eat?" So in the middle of this high-level exchange of ideas, she had a chance to ask her host what his favorite dish was during his stay in Hawaii. His instant reply was Rice Japan-style:

Rice Japanese Style

Use fresh poached salmon, if in season. Do not overcook, leaving as whole as possible. Otherwise use the very best top canned salmon. First parch 3 tablespoons sesame seeds in dry skillet until they jump. Chop them finely in food chopper. Remove skin and bones from salmon. Combine with sake (rice wine) and soy sauce in skillet. Cover and simmer briefly. Divide hot cooked rice into six Japanese rice pattern heated bowls. Sprinkle with parched seeds. Pour half a cup hot green tea, made in a Korean teapot, covering with own lids. Matching Japanese rice pattern lids with own spoons can be found at Kinji's in Carmel.

Simmered Lentil Soup

Follow directions on one package lentils. Add some little sausages cut into circles. Simmer with enough water to which bouillon cubes have been added. Leave lentils whole. That is the way we like them. Add herbs to taste. Nice with buttered, thinly sliced French bread and a tossed green salad brought to table in an olive wood bowl lightly dressed at the last moment with oil and vinegar. Salt and pepper shakers are passed for each to his own.

The above combination is a bit heavy so let's have a:

Slimming Omelette with Shrimp Sauce

Melt 2 tablespoons butter, add 2 tablespoons flour. Make into a smooth paste by cooking over low heat. Add just enough water with nonfat dry milk and seasonings to spark the ensemble such as L&P, lemon juice, salt and pepper to taste. Add 2 cups small shrimp. Serve hot with crisp bacon, crumbled, on toast. Orange marmalade with steaming coffee makes a satisfying bruncheon. This only takes 6 freshest whipped eggs to complete your morning breakfast.

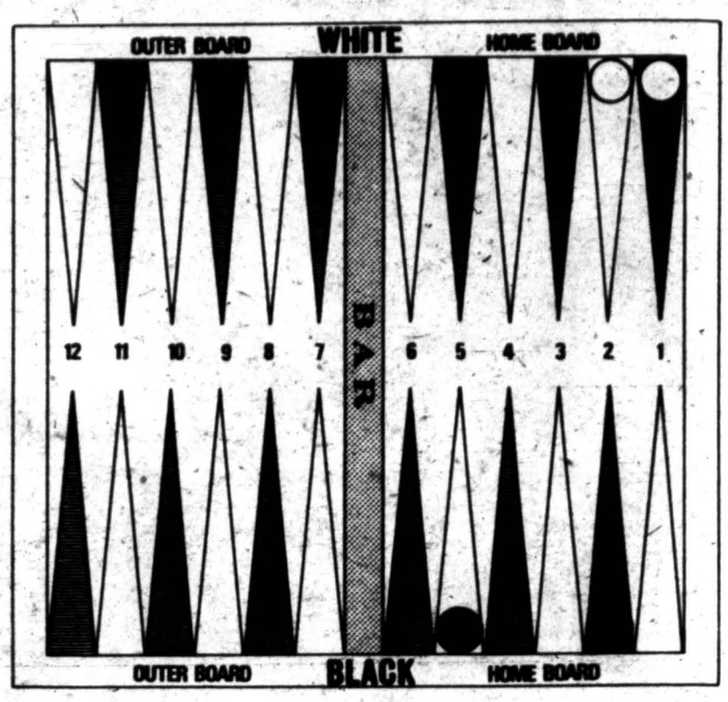
Backgammon



Black owns the doubling cube at 2 and it is his roll. Should he double?

ANSWER TO BACKGAMMON PROBLEM

This position is really quite simple to calculate. Black's roll will decide his fate, for if he fails to bear off both men, White cannot fail to win the game at his next turn.

Of the 36 rolls possible at each cast of the dice, let's see how many are bad for Black. First, any combination of numbers that includes a 1 will leave Black with a man stranded in his home board. Altogether, there are 11 combinations that include a 1. In addition, 4-3, 4-2 and 3-2 will also allow Black to bear off only one man, and so will lose the game—that is, another six combinations. All other rolls will permit Black to bear off both men.

Therefore, Black has 17 combinations that will lose the game for him. The other 19 rolls win. Since Black is a slight favorite, he should redouble and make White pay for the privilege of watching Black roll.

This position is typical of many that crop up in backgammon. It is correct for Black to double and it is compulsory for White to accept the double. Mathematically, it is correct to accept a double if you are no worse than a 3-to-1 underdog, and here White is only fractionally worse than an even money bet.

HOW MANY DOGS IN CARMEL?

"How many is our canine population?" the mayor asked the Humane Society officials at last night's City Council meeting.

The humane society official approached the podium.

"Are there 20 or 1,000?" the mayor struggled for information.

"More than 20 and less than 1,000," answered the official of the Humane Society.

CARMEL'S MOVIE STAR

"Dear Madam: We have enlisted your son on our show roll. Thank you."

Thus came word to Mrs. Vida Wingate, Carmel restaurant proprietor, that her son Charles, 14, had been accepted by the Fox Film Corporation for a part in the movies.

And Charles wired his mother Wednesday morning from Watsonville, where he was in conference with the movie magnates, that he was leaving for Hollywood immediately for the first screening.

SEX SCANDAL IN CARMEL?

A pair of pink bloomers and one undershirt were found lying on Ocean Avenue between Junipero and Mission on Sunday. The items provided an undercurrent of conversation this week that was unduly mystifying.

This empty bloomer and undershirt could have been left by a young woman of perhaps from 18 to 30 summers. The careful way the garments were spread out precluded any conjectures that the wearer lost them while running or walking.

TRUSTEES GRUESOME TO KIDS

Unless they change their minds — and how often do school board trustees do that? — school will start a week earlier this fall, but let out not a day earlier the following spring.

That was decided at last night's school board meeting. "It's better to start early and then have a day or two of vacation in the spring. Student strikes, walkouts, and insurrections always occur in the spring," said Chairman J. O. Handley.

PEBBLE BEACH GATE FEE UP

The gate fee to the Del Monte Forest will be raised to $2.50 per car March 1, according to A. G. Michaud, president of Del Monte Properties Co.

The current fee is $2. Costs of maintaining the roads and policing the area necessitated the change, he said.

NEW CITY COUNCIL CANDIDATES

Three more candidates have announced their intentions to seek a seat on the City Council.

Carel Bosholm, owner of Svendsgaard's Lodge, took out papers yesterday as did Finn Horton, professor of the Naval Postgraduate School, and Barney Laiolo, a Planning Commissioner and owner of Village Electric.

HIGH SCHOOL OUT OF SPACE

Carmel High School is fast approaching its capacity of 1,000 students, with present enrollment at 955 and 974 projected for 1968-69, according to a report by Superintendent Harris A. Taylor to the Carmel school board last evening.

CARMEL VALLEY ROAD TRAFFIC UP

More than 5,000 cars use Carmel Valley Road every day, according to a traffic study noted by Supervisor Willard Branson.

Traffic volume there has increased 400 vehicles per day, or a 3 per cent jump in one year. The study also shows that accidents have been reduced.

Classics on foundation agenda

Dr. Irving Greenberg, an author of program notes for the Carmel Bach Festival, will play two classical recordings from his personal collection Wednesday at the Carmel Foundation.

Selected for play are "Till Eulenspiegel's Merry Pranks," by Richard Strauss, and Mozart's "Concerto No. 20 in B minor."

The program starts at 2:30 p.m. in Diment Hall, Eighth and Lincoln. Admission is free.

Carmel Citizens Committee
INVITES THE PUBLIC TO ATTEND

CANDIDATES' NIGHT

Thursday, February 16

In the Parish Hall of All Saints Church
at Lincoln and Ninth in Carmel
7:30 P.M.

The Carmel Citizens Committee will hold a Candidates Night in conjunction with its brief annual meeting, to present Candidates for the Carmel City Council. All are invited.

Two candidates have filed for the one two-year term and three candidates have filed for the two four-year terms. Since a majority of the council will be elected in the March 7 election, leadership in Carmel will be at stake. Traditionally, the candidate receiving the largest vote will be named mayor by the new council.

All candidates have been invited and will have equal opportunity to speak briefly and to answer questions from the floor.

Refreshments will be served at 7:30 prior to the meeting.

Marries Robert Powers

Ski honeymoon for Suzi Smith

Suzi Smith of Carmel and Robert Alan Powers of Walnut Creek exchanged wedding vows Saturday in a Roman Catholic service at the Carmel Mission Basilica. The Rev. Joseph P. Conran, S. J., officiated at the afternoon ceremony.

The couple departed for a week-long ski honeymoon in Heavenly Valley. They plan to make their home in San Francisco.

Suzi asked Mrs. David Zilch, of Sacramento, to be her matron of honor. The bride wore a gown of English net and lace. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Matt Ryan Smith of Carmel. Her father is a member of the Carmel Forestry Commission.

Thomas Hulton, of Honolulu, Hawaii, served as Robert's best man. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Roland Powers of Walnut Creek.

Following the wedding, a buffet reception for 150 guests was hosted at Carmel Valley Golf and Country Club.

Suzi attended Stanford University and holds a master's degree in nursing from the University of San Francisco. She graduated from Santa Catalina School in Monterey and earlier had attended the Anna Head School in Berkeley, Mont Olivet Girls School in Lausanne, Switzerland, and the Convent of the Sacred Heart in Menlo Park. Suzi is employed by the Stanford University Medical Center.

Robert is a graduate of Walnut Creek High School in Walnut Creek and attended Diablo Valley Community College in Walnut Creek. He owns his own laboratory.

SUZI SMITH married Robert Alan Powers at the Carmel Mission on Saturday. They left for a ski honeymoon in Heavenly Valley.

Artist evicted at Sunset Center

The Carmel Community and Cultural Commission took actions late in January that indicate it plans to enforce lease requirements at Sunset Center more closely.

The commission voted 6-0 to remove tenant and graphic artist Richard Larson from room 19 because he did not teach any graphic arts class there in the past year. He leased the room in January 1977.

The commission now is considering using room 19 in conjunction with the recently refurbished room 20. The commissioners offered to help find Larson another room in the center, but the graphic artist has decided to move out.

Tenants who lease rooms in the center are required to either teach a class there or perform some related service, according to Sunset Director Richard Tyler.

Room 19 rents for $125 per month, or 14 cents per square foot. "The low price is to induce people to come here and teach," Tyler said.

The commission action was spurred by City Administrator Jack Collins, who said of room 19, "In my frequent visits to this building, I've never seen a soul in there."

The increasing demand for space in Sunset Center prompted Commissioner Alison Schwyzer to note, "We must be more stringent on demands for our tenants."

Larson warned the commission that Sunset Center "would be losing a great thing as far as graphic arts go." Commissioner Bernard VanHorne said the room [illegible] only as a storage space. "The record shows no teaching and the prospects show no teaching," declared Commissioner Lewis Heniford.

Near upset scares first-place Padres

Carmel Sports

By JAY POSNER

A flat Carmel High varsity basketball team survived an upset bid by the smaller Gonzales High Spartans Friday and squeaked out a 48-46 victory at Gonzales.

The Padres remained 7-0 in MTAL play as a result of a game-tying free throw by John Frincke and a game-winning four-foot jumper by Tom Frincke at the final buzzer.

During the game, the lead changed hands or was tied a total of 21 times, including 10-10 and 36-36 ties at the end of the first and third quarters, respectively.

The Padres opened up the biggest lead of the game in the fourth quarter when Dave Stevenson converted two free throws with 2:39 to go. They yielded a 45-40 Carmel lead. However, Gonzales guard Joe Mendoza (who led all scorers with 18 points) went to work and scored six straight points to give the Spartans a 46-45 lead with 28 seconds left.

With eight seconds remaining, John Frincke was fouled and awarded two free throws. He sank the first shot to tie the game, but missed the second. Jim Irwin tipped the rebound out to John who fired a pass underneath the basket to brother Tom. Tom, who scored 12 points in the game, whirled and hit a four-foot jumper as the buzzer sounded.

Stevenson paced Carmel's scorers with 17 points as well as grabbing nine rebounds to lead the Padres in that category.

Tom and John Frincke had seven and six rebounds, respectively, and they each scored 12 points.

Tonight the Padres meet the Robert Louis Stevenson Pirates on the Pirates' home court.

IN THE junior varsity game, Carmel breezed to a 60-42 win as four Padres — Mark Nottenkamper, Adam Sherburne, Art Strum and Pete Thamer — all scored 11 points.

Prior to that game, Carmel's freshmen came from behind to edge the Spartans 41-35. Greg Raynes led Carmel with 14 points and Todd Bliesner added 11 points.

Carmel swimmers claim six gold medals in S. F.

Splashing into the 1978 AAU synchronized swimming season, the Carmel-based Cypress Swim Club claimed six first-place gold medals, six second-place silver medals and four third-place bronze medals at the weekend Pacific AAU Age Group Synchronized Swimming Championships in San Francisco.

In the 15- to-16 age group, Kerry Wald staged a surprizing jump from seventh place in the preliminary round to third in the final solo routine competition. She won a bronze medal and a qualifying spot for the Region 13 AAU Championships starting Friday, Feb. 17, in Anaheim. It was a bittersweet victory for Kerry, however, because she edged out her cousin and duet partner, Pavia Wald, who finished in fourth place.

The two then paired for the duet competition in the 15-to-16 age group and pulled off an upset gold medal victory over the leading duo of Becky Dewees and Laura Fehely of the Hayward Flying Fins. Going into the finals, the Hayward duet was ahead by a half point, but the Wald cousins won in the end by two points.

In the 17- to-18 age group solos, Robin Currier and Tina Wald of Cypress retained their preliminary placements of second and third, respectively, behind San Francisco's Cindy Borbeck, but closed the scoring gap by one point. In the 17-to-18 duet competition, they also were held to second-place silver medals by Borbeck and Cookie Bischard, also winners in the 15- to-16 solo event.

Cypress gained revenge, though, in the 15- to-18 team event. The local foursome won the gold medals, defeating the heavily favored eight-girl San Francisco Merionette team. Despite the AAU rule which gave the Merionettes a two-point bonus over the Cypress foursome (one-half point per swimmer over four), Cypress came from behind to overtake the Merionettes and win by more than a point. The California Coralettes finished third; the Santa Clara Aquamaids fourth. In the 11-to-12 duet competition, Tone Grince and Brenda LaMica, swimming together for the first time, placed eighth.

11-12: Brenda LaMica, 12th; Tone Grinde, 37th; Cindy Cornford, 62nd; and Christine Winge, 68th.

13-14: Heller Gardner, 41st, and Diana Marks, 52nd.

15-16: Pavia Wald, third; Kerry Wald, seventh; Maia Weir, 27th; and Kim Wright, 28th.

17-18: Robin Carter, second, and Tina Wald, third.

We made it!

The rains have finally arrived, and thanks to your excellent record of conservation, we are able to suspend the rationing program. We urge you to consider how much we have all learned in the past year. You have taught your children the value of saving water, and this lesson will benefit them enormously in their adult lives. We have also learned how much we depend on water for our lifestyle. Let us now plan ahead, use what we have learned the hard way, and together, we will work for the future of California.

Carmel churches begin Lenten observances

Carmel Mission

A series of talks arranged by the Diocese of Monterey Office of Education will begin on Wednesday.

The talks are part of the parish Lenten program. Talks will be given on five consecutive Wednesdays at 7:30 p.m. Each week a different Peninsula parish will host the event.

The first of these presentations will be given at the San Carlos Cathedral, 550 Church St., Monterey. The Rev. Gerald D. Coleman, S.S., director of students at St. Patrick's Seminary in Menlo Park, will lead off with "The Moral Dimensions of a Christian Spirituality."

Parishioners from all Catholic churches in the area are encouraged to attend the programs.

All Saints'

The first in a series of four weekly Lenten potluck suppers will begin Wednesday at 6 p.m. with Evensong, supper at 6:30 p.m. and a program to begin at 7:30 p.m. The programs will be discussions about the outreach efforts of the parish.

Several classes also are beginning this week concerning "Exodus," "How to Be Born Again," "Prophets" and both a youth and adult Confirmation class. For more information on these classes, phone 624-3883.

Sunday is Hymnal Sunday and parishioners will be asked to fill out a questionnaire concerning possible revision of the hymnal.

Bishop C. Charles Vache, from the Diocese of Southern Virginia, will be the guest preacher at the 9 a.m. service on Sunday.

Our Churches

Wayfarer

The Rev. Paul R. Woudenberg will begin a Lenten series of sermons this Sunday. Entitled "My Favorite Chapters of the Bible," the first sermon of this service will concern Romans 12:1-9.

Worship services are at 9:30 and 11 a.m.

Presbyterian

A guest speaker, the Rev. James Baird, of the Presbyterian Church of Ft. Collins, Colo., will give the 9:30 and 11 a.m. sermons.

Church school for all ages begins at 9:30 a.m.

Community

The title of the Rev. Howard E. Bull's sermon is "Living with the Probable." The service is at 10:30 a.m.

A roller skating party, sponsored by the Cana Committee, is scheduled for Monday at Del Monte Gardens. Tickets for the party, which will run from 6:30 to 9 p.m., are $1.50 and are available at the church.

Christian Science

"Soul" is the topic of this week's lesson-sermon to be conducted Sunday at 11 a.m. and 5 p.m. The Sunday School, for young people up to age 21, begins at 11 a.m.

Farrell's touch

By the Rev. LARRY FARRELL

An American Indian legend tells us of a squaw who found an eagle's egg and put it into a prairie chicken's nest, where it hatched, and the eagle grew to old age thinking he was a flightless prairie chicken.

One day he saw in the cloudless blue sky an eagle flying with golden wings.

"What is it?" he asked.

"It is an eagle," was the reply, "but forget it. You can never be like him."

So the changeling died thinking he was a prairie chicken.

The moral is that many men go through life thinking they are chickens when they are really eagles so they short-change themselves and the world.

53 Serra students honored

Junipero Serra Catholic School in Carmel has put 35 students on the principal's "Distinguished Student" list for the second quarter. The honor is given for good citizenship and academic excellence. On the list are:

Charles Armstrong, Stewart Petoe, Sarah Beesley, Amy Long, Joseph Narvaez, Kelley Swanston, Melissa Nunemaker, Kimberly Doyle, Nicholas Long, Karen O'Neill, Cathy Avila, Christine Balbo, Katherine Mitchell, Matt Toole, Peter Aylaian, Krysia Belza, Annamarie Avila and Brian Aylaian.

Obituaries

Mass Saturday for Mrs. Hansen

Rose Page Hansen, 83, a Carmel resident for the past 40 years, died last Thursday at her home at Torres Street and Eighth Avenue after a long illness.

Mrs. Hansen, born July 26, 1894, in London, was an ambulance driver for the Royal Air Force in World War I. She came to the United States in the early 1920s.

A memorial Mass of Christian burial will be offered Saturday at 8 a.m. at the Carmelite monastery chapel. Burial will be in Golden Gate National Cemetery at 1:15 p.m. on Monday. The Mission Mortuary is in charge of local arrangements. Contributions to the Carmelite Monastery are suggested.

Mrs. Heebner dead at 47

Lois Heebner of Carmel, 12 years a Peninsula resident, died Saturday at Community Hospital following a long illness. She was 47.

Mrs. Heebner was born in Sioux Falls, S.D., on July 10, 1930. She was a public accountant.

Mrs. Heebner is survived by her husband, Charles "Skip" Heebner of Carmel; sons Derek Rader of Woodland Hills, David Rader of Carmel and Kevin Rader of Florida; one daughter, Karen Rader of New Orleans, La.; her mother, Agnes Miller of Lighthouse Point, Fla.; a brother, Herb Chandler of St. Paul, Minn.; and sisters Patricia Shelton of Carmel and Colleen McClelland of San Bruno.

A Mass of Christian burial was offered Monday at the Carmel Mission Basilica. The family asks that memorial contributions be given to the American Cancer Society, 439 Webster St., Monterey.

Death claims author's widow

Mrs. Anna Appleton Barretto, 86, a 25-year Peninsula resident, died Jan. 30 at Carmel Valley Manor after a long illness.

Born in Englewood, N.J., on April 8, 1891, she was a member of the Carmel Foundation. Her late husband, writer Laurence Brevoot Barretto, died in 1971. She collaborated with her husband in illustrating his books.

Before coming to the Peninsula, she was associated with the Frick Art Reference Library in New York. She is survived by five nieces and one nephew.

In accord with her wishes, no funeral service was conducted. Following cremation, her ashes were scattered at sea. Memorial contributions may be made to the Carmel Foundation, Box 3424, Carmel.

Retired colonel dies at Eskaton

U.S. Army Colonel (Ret.) Milo Howard Matteson, 76, of Carmel died Feb. 1 at Eskaton Monterey Hospital after a period of failing health.

He had been a Carmel resident since retiring from the Army in 1954 after 30 years of service. He was born in Eyota, Minn., on Sept. 2, 1901.

Matteson is survived by his widow, Helen C. Matteson of Carmel; his son, U.S. Army Colonel (Ret.) Jack F. Matteson of Austin, Tex.; his sister, Marsha Tottingham, of Eyota, Minn.; and four grandchildren.

Services were conducted Friday at the Little Chapel by-the-Sea in Pacific Grove. The Rev. Charles Anker of the Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel officiated. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

YOUR RAIN GUTTER RUST-OUT PROBLEMS

HUDELSON & MYERS PRESENT THEIR RAIN GUTTER

"FACTORY ON WHEELS"

Pictured here is our remarkable new machine making continuous rain gutters on a job in Pebble Beach. It's the only machine of its kind on the entire Monterey Peninsula.

This amazing equipment can roll out seamless strips of gutter any length up to 980 feet! No seams mean better appearance, better draining, easier cleaning, no joint leakage.

What's more, the material is long-lasting aluminum which will not rust, with a fine protective coating of bonderized paint (like an enamel, applied under high pressure) both inside and out.

Expensive? Not at all! The cost for this extraordinary rain gutter is comparable to ordinary types of galvanized metal gutters which rust out in very few years.

So give us a call. Our skilled craftsmen will quickly and expertly produce and install this great new gutter right on the job for you. Remember . . . it's aluminum and will not rust.

FREE WANT ADS

For subscribers to the Carmel Pine Cone

A SPECIAL GET-ACQUAINTED OFFER TO OUR VALUED SUBSCRIBERS

The Pine Cone is now under new ownership and new management. We are happy to be here and look forward to meeting our subscribers. Meanwhile, as a gesture of our thanks for your continued support, we invite you to have a free want ad, every week, in your paper.

HOW TO WRITE A WANT AD

List the classification you want your ad to appear under in the form at right. Then start your ad with the item you have for sale, etc. Be sure to include your phone number at the end. To make your ad effective, describe your item fully including such things as weight, size, color, age, condition, etc. It is best to list your asking price; this will eliminate calls from people who are not prospective buyers.

RULES:

Free want ads are for person-to-person sales only. Ads for businesses or real estate will not be accepted. Free ads must be written on this form only and delivered to our office by noon Tuesday (no phone ads, please). Free ads are limited to 20 words. The Pine Cone is not responsible for errors in free ads. [illegible] subscriber per week. To run the same ad the following week, a new ad on a new form must be submitted. Publisher reserves the right to refuse to accept any free ad for any reason. Free ads may be placed in the following classifications: Antiques, Autos for Sale, Boats for Sale, Lost & Found, Misc. for Sale, Pets & Livestock, Special Notices, Wanted, Yard Sales.

This label is your ticket for a free ad and must appear here on any ad you turn in. Clip this label from the front page of your weekly Pine Cone.

ATTACH THE ADDRESS LABEL ON YOUR PERSONAL COPY OF THE PINE CONE HERE

REAL ESTATE BY EDWARD E. BROWN, REALTOR

FRACTURED FAIRY TALE

TWO GENTLEMEN FARMERS

Once upon a time in the beautiful Valley of Carmel, there lived two Gentlemen Farmers (Mr. Green and Mr. Thumb). Mr. Green lived just East of Laureles Grade in a beautiful four-bedroom California Ranch home. Each morning he would swim outdoors in the heated pool and watch the sun rise over the mountain. Then, in the afternoon, Mr. Green would walk his horses completely around the level acre of ground. Now, one summer day, Mr. Thumb noticed how much Mr. Green was enjoying Carmel Valley life, so he purchased a level acre of ground just a few miles West of Mr. Green and built himself a four-bedroom California Ranch home with a heated swimming pool. Mr. Thumb also planted an orchard and built a three-room guest house so all of his friends from the Foggy Coast could visit and enjoy the sunshine. Fortunately this story has a happy ending because both of these fine Gentlemen Farmers have decided to sell and give others the opportunity to enjoy the good life of Carmel Valley. We are sure either of these fine four-bedroom homes will enable you to live happily ever after.

OCEAN VIEW LOT. Located one short block from the shore on Carmel Point! A beautiful site for a very special home. Approximately 6000 square feet in size, nice trees. Opportunities for acquiring prime view sites near the beach are rare! $95,000.

A MAN'S HOME IS HIS CASTLE ... and this unique rock home is a miniature castle. "Words and Music" is its name and it would take 1000 words or more to adequately describe all its many artistic and unusual features (beautiful wood interior, hand-crafted heavy doors and beams, custom-made wrought iron hardware, specially designed windows encased in wood, etc.). Located in a private and secluded area on the bluff overlooking Hatton Fields Mesa, there is a breathtaking view of Point Lobos and the hills. The main house has just one bedroom and a den plus a room or study on a lower level. Then there is an adorable Guest House with fireplace and a widow's walk ... and a separate Artist's Studio with half-bath in its own quiet spot at one end of the property. This is a very special property for a very special buyer. Please call us for an appointment ... or stop by the office to view an album of photographs illustrating its many delightful features. $335,000.

Spanish Hacienda in Carmel Valley

You almost expect Don Alfredo or Don Miguel or Don Somebody to greet you as you step through the great wooden gates into the patio that protects this desert-style home. And that's not so far-fetched, because it sits within a few feet of the original ranch-house which served as command post for the 4300-acre Rancho Canada de la Segundo a hundred years or so ago.

When Architect Paul Davis designed this house about 8 years ago, he carefully blended the traditions of the past with the conveniences of today. It's all adobe. 15" x 6" bricks exposed inside and out. The flat roof is supported by 6 x 12 beams, crossed by smaller beams and sheathed in with 4" planks. The house is U-shaped, fronted by a 19 x 19 living room that faces, but is hidden from, Carmel Valley Road, and flanked by two wings which reach back toward a knoll and embrace a 24 x 26 paved inner patio.

In the photo below you see the living room, dominated by a giant adobe fireplace with fir-beam mantel. On either side floor-to-ceiling windows look to the private front patio; and behind you, glass doors open to the inner court. The massive inset carpet is flame-colored, and the floor around it is paved with 6" square earthen tile — as is the rest of the house.

The east wing contains an open, skylighted kitchen with sizeable dining area, laundry room, 2 bedrooms and a bath, all separated from the courtyard by a vertical corridor. The west wing is almost identical, with 2 bedrooms, sky-lighted master bath and dressing room, and numerous closets. Along its corridor a lighted shadow-box displays artifacts from the past: a horseshoe, hand-wrought nails and bolts, buckles, an old medicine bottle.

A home like this deserves a name, and you'll find it lettered on the gatepost: Casa Canada. It's just 3 miles east of Highway 1, on Carmel Valley Road directly across from the stables. It also has a number, 674, and you must look sharp for it. The short lane leads to the one-acre site, parking area, spacious carport, and a wonderfully modern 1800 sq. ft. house with a romantic tradition. The price is $142,500.

In These Homes, Decks Provide Privacy, The Outdoors Is Yours

Besides decks opening from living room, kitchen and lower two-bedroom level, this John Gamble designed home in Pebble Beach also has a deck off the third floor master suite with adjacent den. Each deck has view beyond Monterey to Mount Toro. $148,500.

Overlooking a forested Hatton Fields canyon, the deck, above, opens to living room, master suite with guest room in a modified A-frame home, while a second deck with hill view is off a loft bedroom or den. Tile-floored entry and kitchen add interest. $127,500.

Capturing sunshine in a new, custom decorated Pebble Beach home is the deck opening from the living room. Another deck adds outdoor dimension to the master suite. Dining room, combined kitchen/family room, two more bedrooms complete this exciting home. $225,000.

There's a hot tub and a sauna, also ocean and Point Lobos view, to enjoy on this deck off the master suite of a several-level, Kipp Stewart designed, Carmel Highlands home featuring innovative use of glass and wood in living room, dining room, kitchen and three bedrooms. $300,000.

Lines go underground downtown

Pacific Gas and Electric Co. has begun trenching in part of the Carmel commercial district where underground lines will be installed. The work is scheduled for completion by July 1.

Most of the work will be centered along Lincoln and Monte Verde, south of Ocean, according to Robert N. Eustice, Carmel area manager for PG&E. He said the project, the third phase of an undergrounding agreement with the city, will cost the utility company $235,000.

Property owners in the area were notified in June that the project was scheduled this month. Each must hire an electrician to modify his or her power connection by May 15. Eustice said the work should cost about $150.

Some 15 telephone poles and 2,200 ft. of overhead wire will be removed. The poles will be salvaged and the overhead wire will be replaced.

The Hood Corp., of Capitola, is the contractor.

Sections of the three streets will be partially closed during the project. No street will be entirely closed during the work project, however, Eustice said. When this phase is completed, some 76 per cent of the commercial district will have underground utilities.

The project is part of a four-phase project adopted by the City Council in 1963.

The lawmakers gave PG&E an exclusive utility contract with the city in exchange for the underground promise, according to City Administrator Jack Collins.

Some 25 per cent of the district was completed in October 1968. Another 25 per cent was finished in October 1973. The entire project must be finished by Oct. 4, 1983, according to the 1963 agreement.

Pacific Telephone and Monterey Peninsula Television Cable also will be involved in the project. Pacific Telephone is responsible for removing the telephone poles.

The underground lines will be buried three feet deep, Eustice said.

State Public utilities Commission regulations require undergrounding in almost all new commercial or residential areas, according to Eustice.

I. Magnin manager retires

Jerry Longstreth, of Pebble Beach, is retiring as store manager of I. Magnin in Carmel after 30 years of service.

Her career with the company began in 1938 as a buyer, a position she held for 18 years. Following a brief break in service, she rejoined the company when I. Magnin opened its Carmel store in 1968. She has served as store manager ever since.

Carol Sere, of Salinas, a department manager in Carmel since 1975, will replace her as store manager.

Chef to lead class on cooking

"Food for Life" is the title of a new cooking course being offered at the Carmel Foundation Diment Hall, Lincoln between Eighth and Ninth, on Thursdays from 1 to 4 p.m.

Teaching the course is Cornacles Van Peski, former chef at Neil De Vaughn's restaurant on Cannery Row. Prior to that, Van Peski ran the Hob Nob restaurant in Carmel. He was at Neil de Vaughn's for 18 years. He has been on radio and television locally and currently is writing a book on food.

He will take suggestions from the class and will spend the time, baking or cooking, following through on a recipe so that each student will have something to take home.

The class is conducted under the auspices of Monterey Peninsula College and the public is invited.

Forestry panel to meet at 1 p.m.

The Carmel Forestry Commission has rescheduled its meeting time to 1:30 p.m. the last Tuesday of each month. The commission previously met at 1 p.m.
